Fire Causes Extensive Damage At New Castle Plant Today

Old Main Plant Of Blair Steel Company Burns

Disastrous Fire At Plant On Butler Avenue Extension Today

NEW PLANT WILL BE IN USE SOON

Cause Of Blaze Not Known
—Firemen On Scene
For Hours

Fire of unknown origin which swept through the wood-composition roof of the old main plant of the Blair Steel Company, Butler avenue extension, today caused complete destruction of that building, destroyed valuable machinery used in the manufacture of fine tempered steel and ruined considerable manufactured products which had been stored. City firemen and volunteers battled with flames for five hours. The old part of the plant was practically leveled.

George D. Blair, Jr., head of the factory, would make no estimate on the extent of damage caused by the fire.

After a survey of the fire ruins, and the loss that had been occasioned to the building and contents, Fire Chief Charles H. Lynn said that the loss would be around $350,000, he would estimate, although this was in no way an official statement as to the probable loss.

Mr. Blair said that although the old main building of the plant had been completely destroyed, the new plant built last year is practically unharmed and the company will resume operations within 30 days, using the new plant.

Destruction of machinery and equipment was effected in an area of about 15,000 square feet.

Complete ruin was found in the shipping room, where the fire is believed to have originated; pickling room, where acids were applied to temper metal; store room; machine shop and the mill department.

Firemen Called
Firemen at Central Station had barely time to rest from a two-hour fire on the West Side when a telephone alarm at 6:20 a. m. summoned them to the scene.

PA NEW OBSERVES

We saw a hand-written sign in ancient Spencerian style in a window on East Long avenue the other day. While the type of handwriting is practically obsolete it is nevertheless pleasing to the eye, and if nothing more, represents labor.

Here's where winter takes another on the nose. Harry Marshall, East New Castle, reports he picked blooming violets in the front yard of his home Monday. And he produced them to show it's not so wintry yet.

The number of automobiles parked in front of the Cathedral last night, and several blocks from there, indicated that a large crowd of people heard the Sue Harvard concert. And the number of enthusiastic remarks Pa New is hearing today indicates that the concert went over big.

New Castle sent a delegation to the ceremonies incident to the opening of the new Ellwood City-Portersville highway this afternoon. The actual program took place midway between the two towns.

Apparently Delaware is also a state where inspection of mechanical condition of autos is required. A Delaware car was standing on Washington street yesterday afternoon with a red inspection tag on the windshield.

FIREMEN RESCUE FAMILY TRAPPED BY MORNING FIRE

Trapped on the second floor of their two-story brick home after a dense blanket of smoke had enveloped their rooms, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Jewell and their three children of 427 West Washington street were rescued by firemen shortly after 4 o'clock this morning.

Fire may have originated from "crossed wires" located under the first floor, according to a report of the fire department.

Mr. Jewell reported that considerable damage resulted to stock and fixtures of his grocery store, located on the first floor. The stock and fixture damage was estimated by him at $3,000. Fire Chief Lynn estimated the building damage at $500. The building is owned by Edward Cavender. Evelyn, 17-year-old daughter of the Jewells awoke the family after she had smelled smoke in her room. An alarm was sent by a neighbor. The family escaped the smoke temporarily by getting on a ledge on the side of the house, where they waited until firemen arrived. Ladders were placed against the walls and they climbed to the ground. The loss was insured.

It may be that a prophet is not without honor, save in his own country, but the axiom can hardly be said to include sopranos. Particularly when the country is New Castle and the soprano is Sue Harvard, for on Tuesday evening, September 30, Pa. News and his wife and his family and his friends packed about two thirds of the 3300 capacity Cathedral auditorium in a tribute to the young lady that must have certainly burned its impress upon her mind and heart.

It is safe to say there has never been such a song recital in New Castle, at least not in the past two decades. There have been other recitals and other soloists but Tuesday night's outpouring of musical talent and the elusiveness of musical success, and returns to the plaudits of his home city.

Well Rounded Success
There are several ways of adjudging the success of any recital. From the standpoint of artistry and musicianship, from the physical size of the crowd, the financial returns, and the emotional reaction of those who attend. Judge this recital from any one of them and the result is the same, a satisfying success, a triumph for the artiste and an exhibition of civic pride that inspired Sue Harvard to heights even she had never before attained.

Hold Constable On Murder Charge

Leechburg Constable Is Held In Connection With Conto's
Death

KITTANNING, Pa., Oct. 1.—Constable William Raper was held today on a charge of murder in connection with the death of Joseph Conto, Leechburg, soft drinks manufacturer, whose shot-riddled and decapitated body was found in a wooded section near here last Thursday.

Under severe grilling at the hands of state police the suspect is said to have changed the account of his actions previous to the murder several times.

Meanwhile, Constable G. L. Knell, of Leechburg, was preparing to lead a group of boys to the scene of the murder tomorrow in an effort to find a gun and black-jack believed to have been used by the killer.

Should the first party be unsuccessful in finding the death-dealing implements a troop of Boy Scouts will be asked to continue the search Saturday.

Raper is said to have told police, County Detective Charles R. Best and Police Chief Martin O'Leary, of Leechburg, that his black-jack was at his home. A thorough search of the premises by the questioning officers failed to reveal the mace. Indications were that Conto presumed he was talking with a friend before the murder took place, according to police, who found a cigar stub near the scene of the murder.

SOME 6,000 ATTEND
ANNUAL SESSIONS

Hope To Find Solution That Will Lead Business And Industry Out Of Depression

CLEVELAND, Oct. 1.—Mooted issues of banking and economics, outstanding among which were those of branch banking and taxation, were thrown into the open arena of the second general session of the 56th annual convention of the American Bankers' association here today.

When the smoke and dust of anticipated wrangling, especially over the proposal for a limited extension of branch banking privileges, had cleared away, the 6,000 banker-delegates hope to find towering above the debris a clean-cut and definite chart which will lead business and industry out of the present slough of depression.

Reports Are Read.

Preliminary to the report of the resolutions committee on the convention issues at the general sessions today were two addresses: one by Thornton Cooke of Kansas City on the vital subject of taxation, and the other by Alexander D. Noyes, noted New York financial editor, on "The Cycle of Prosperity." Cooke believes that if the trend for taxes is inescapably up, new sources of revenue, most likely from the field of income, must be sought out.

The convention issue of taxation found tangibility in the state bank division of the association. The resolution of the division referred to the general resolutions committee, condemned a bureaucratic government, both state and national, as being responsible for the pyramiding of taxes.

Favorable Action.

Favorable action was anticipated from the resolutions committee, headed by Max Nahn of Bowling Green, Ky., on the proposal urging a departure from the association's long-established and rigid opposition to the spread of the tendency toward larger unit banks. Among the delegates, however, the issue was a heated point of controversy between small city and rural bankers and bankers of large city institutions.

Recommendation for the extension of the branch bank plan was made yesterday by Rudolf S. Hecht of New Orleans, chairman of the association's economic policy commission, who for a number of years was recognized as the spokesman for unit bankers.

Calls Upon Bankers.

Hecht's address followed that of John G. O'Neil, of St. Louis, president of the association.

Prison Riot Heroes May Get Medals

(International News Service)

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 1.—Carnegie medals may be awarded two heroes of the Canon City prison riot of last October 3 and 4.

The Carnegie hero fund commission has asked a state official for complete information regarding the exploits of Father Patrick O'Neil, Benedictine monk, and Marion Keating, a National Guardsman.

Father O'Neil, prison chaplain, twice risked his life during the riot. He planted dynamite under a corner of a cellhouse where Danny Daniels and his mutinous convict gang were holding guards as hostages.

Keating mounted the north wall of the prison and tossed tear bombs into the cellhouse as he ran along the wall. Both men were fired upon by prison guards.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—President Hoover set out today on a weeks journeying that will take him on a triangular swing through ten states and provide him with the opportunity—through the medium of four speeches—to make his first contributions to the current congressional campaign, in which the record of his administration is the principal issue.

The White House deprecates the term "political" in connection with the president's trip, but fortuitously enough it is timed just five weeks in advance of the November election, and the states in which Mr. Hoover will speak are those in which the contests are keen.

To Address Bankers

Tomorrow night in Cleveland, before the American Bankers' convention, he will speak on the business condition of the country, which the Democrats have made an issue by blaming the present depression upon his administration.

From Ohio Mr. Hoover will return to Washington for the week end before departing for Boston where on Sunday he will deliver major speeches to the American Legion and the American Federation of Labor. A last overnight run from Boston will carry him into the South for a speech on Tuesday at Kings Mountain, S. C., near the North Carolina border.

Enroute to Cleveland today, the president stops off in Philadelphia long enough to have a look at the first game of the world's series.

More Than Half Of New Cas-

First Two Days Resulted In Light Enrollment Of City Eligibles

Despite the fact that November 4 will see a statewide election of unusual importance in Pennsylvania, the voters of the City of New Castle have displayed a lethargy in registering thus far, that promises one of two things; either a last minute rush on Saturday, or a woefully light vote.

Saturday, October 4, is the last of three days for registration and that voter who has not yet registered, and who does not register on October 4th, can have nothing more than academic interest in the election on November 4th.

All Must Register

There seems to be a disposition upon the part of some voters to believe, erroneously, that because they voted in the Spring Primary Election, that they are qualified to vote in November. This is incorrect. The fact that a voter was qualified and voted in the Spring Primary has no bearing whatever upon his qualification for the November election. He must be registered.

As an example of the unusual light registration, the first precinct of the Fourth Ward stands out. This precinct had 438 registered for the Spring Primary. To date there are but eighty (Continued On Page Two)

School Teacher Accident Victim

Knocked Down By Passing
Truck While Standing At Curb This Morning

Miss Virginia McMillin, 435 Neshannock avenue, a teacher in the public schools, was the victim of an accident this morning, while enroute to her duties in the schools of the city.

Miss McMillin was standing at the curb, North street and Neshannock avenue, close to a telephone pole when the truck of James A. Iddings of Harrisville, Butler county, passed east on Neshannock avenue, as another car was passing west.

The truck was close to the curb and a rack on the truck struck and knocked Miss McMillin to the ground. Miss McMillin according to the report made by Mr. Iddings declined to go to a doctor or be taken home and was apparently uninjured, as she went on to her duties as a teacher.

SHIBE PARK, PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—Baseball's annual blue ribbon event, the World's Series, opened in this wind-swept ball park this afternoon when the dashing St. Louis Cardinals and the formidable Philadelphia Athletics came to grips in the presence of a colorful crowd of 33,000 spectators, including the President of the United States.

Football Weather

Typical football weather prevailed, a brisk wind sweeping in across the field from the north. Most of the spectators wore topcoats and many of the women folk were wrapped in automobile robes. Now and then the sun broke through the clouds but even so it was a little too chilly for comfort back in the recesses of the green-hued grandstands.

But the vast throng, seething with excitement as the initial combat was about to get under way, did not mind the weather. They gave their vocal chords a thorough workout as they cheered every move of their diamond idols.

While 33,000 pairs of eyes looked out upon the drama staged in this tiny ball park, the attention of millions of people elsewhere in America was also centered upon this annual autumn classic.

Gathered around radios, clustered before scoreboards and grouped about information sources from Portland, Maine, to Portland, Oregon and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf others "sat in" on the event. Even to the remote parts of the globe, the play by play story of this combat was being watched by that unduplicated species of sportsman—the baseball fan.

Crowd Comes Early

Long before game time thousands of fans congregated outside the ball park and stormed the box offices for the comparatively few remaining unsold bleacher seats. When the bleachers were full, the fans (Continued On Page Ten)

Advanced Gift Committees To Report Tonight

Community Chest Workers Expected To Report Further Progress In Drive

Advanced Gift workers in the New Castle Community Chest campaign will meet again this evening at 7:30 in the Y. W. C. A. where they will report on the work done by them during the past two days.

With over $20,000 reported at the two initial report meetings, the workers are expected to start the general campaign next Monday, and by that time, the team captains and workers are hopeful that the greater part of the $61,500 goal of the Chest will have been reported, so that the general campaign can be put over as quickly as possible.

Judge James A. Chambers, chairman of the General Campaign, will preside at tonight's meeting, and a special effort is being made to have every team captain, worker, and member of the various executive boards of the eight affiliated agencies present for this evening's meeting.

The Advanced Gift committees are working hard and will continue the same pace during the balance of the week.

Appeals have been made to the larger contributors to the Chest to increase their subscriptions wherever possible to take care of the expected shrinkage among the laboring class of people, who will be unable to give as much as they have in former years, because of adverse working conditions during the past year.

In most cases, they have responded generously, and Chest workers are confident that this year's goal will be reached when the campaign ends.

Lonsdale's address yesterday was optimistic. He suggested, however, that the Sherman anti-trust law be revised in accordance with changing times, and urged reforms in taxation.

Among other resolutions for disposal today was one presented by Leonard Pasqualichio, Erie, Pa., banker, for the repeal of the 18th amendment and the setting up in its stead of legislation for federal and state liquor control. The resolution was backed by a large number of Pennsylvania bankers.

You're the JUDGE

Jim Simpkins had been missing for seven years. In that time not a word had been received from him or about him, and at last his poor wife gave up hope that he was alive and resigned herself to the belief that he was dead.

Now Simpkins, for a number of years before his disappearance, had been a member of a fraternal organization that carried a death benefit. Mrs. Simpkins notified the lodge that her husband had disappeared and at this time, when he hadn't yet returned, she applied to the lodge for his insurance.

But the officers of the lodge had by-laws. They pointed to a special clause which provided that the absence of any member, no matter for how long, without actual proof of death, does not entitle the beneficiary to the insurance until the full term of the member's life expectancy had expired; and Simpkins' life expectancy had not yet expired.

But Mrs. Simpkins had need of the money and was willing to go to court to set the by-laws aside and get her insurance.

How would you decide this case? Make up your mind before you read the decision.

been as colorful as the one in attendance Tuesday evening. Clothes do not make the crowd any more than they make the man, but they do add color and life and tone and this was one evening when society was present, gowned and jeweled for the occasion.

In many cases dinner parties had preceded the recital guests being here from the cities and counties adjacent. In other cases, parties followed the recital. Backstage, immediately following the last number of the program Miss Harvard's dressing room was so swamped with friends that it was necessary to hold the congratulatory reception out in the hallway and even here it was crowded.

interpretation but these are for the professional concert presented by an artist who is present because someone contracted for her appearance much as one contracts for the building of suspension bridges.

This was not that sort of concert. It was an outpouring of golden tones from a New Castle girl who wanted to sing for the benefit of a home institution, the Jameson Memorial Hospital, and with the inspiration of that crowd, a singer less talented than Sue Harvard would have done well. As it was her work was as nearly flawless as you could hope to get.

There was more, much more than just mechanical perfection in her voice. There was gratitude and pride and satisfaction. Beyond the footlights were her friends, knowing she would give everything she had, inspiring her with their presence and inundating her with applause when she finished. Under such conditions one has a right to expect more than just a recital and the expectations of the crowd were more than fulfilled.

Assisting Artists Please

Assisting Miss Harvard were three other artists whose work stood out like gems surrounding a crown jewel. At the piano was Earl Truxell, a Pittsburgh musician whose genius as an accompanist is an assurance to any singer that there will be nothing wanting. Under his skillful fingers the piano voice becomes a complement of the human voice and somehow he seemed to catch the inspiration of the evening.

For the cello accompaniment Miss Harvard invited Leo Sachs of New York City to come to New Castle for the recital. After hearing him play two obligatos one could not but wish that somewhere on the program he might have been given a solo part but unfortunately this was not possible.

Walter H. Pawcett, organist of Christ M. E. of Pittsburgh played the organ accompaniments and once again he was playing for the girl who one day was the soprano soloist in his choir. He added no little to the general effect, particularly in the "Ave Maria" and "Open the Gates of the Temple."

No Sue Harvard appearance would be complete without "Annie Laurie" and "Coming Home." They were not request numbers, they were demands and graciously she sang them. It was not the first time she had sung them here, nor the second, nor the third, and if Sue Harvard sang here every month for the next ten years, she would still be expected to sing these two old favorites.

As a piece of program building, the numbers she sang were chosen with an eye to a well rounded presentation. For those who like the quiet dignity of English composition there was, "Care Selva" from the Opera Atalanta. For those who care for the lighter rader melodies of the Latins, there was Rossini's "Le Danza." The tastes of those who prefer ponderous arias of the German composers there was Von Weber's aria "Ocea Thous Mighty Monster" from the opera "Oberon."

And then for those who want their music served in a light tureen manner there was that group of old Irish melodies, "Believe Me If 'Oh Dear, What Can The Matter Be' and 'The Last Rose of Summer.' And a gracious gesture to the nationality of her ancestors, Miss Harvard sang in Welsh "The Bells of Aberdovey," a Cymric favorite that will never grow old. Her closing group was composed of "Ave Maria" by Beethoven and "Open The Gates of the Temple" by Mrs. Joseph Knapp. Somehow these two numbers seemed like a benediction and the singer a priest adding the finishing touch to an hour of worship. For her last encore she sang what was the last touch to a wonderful evening, "Perfect Day."

Gorgeous Blooms
Dressing the stage were ferns and palms piled high in the corners, while all during the recital gorgeous baskets of conservatory blooms kept finding their way to the platform until at the close the piano looked like a floral bank, and around the feet of the singer were other baskets of flowers. The gown she wore attracted the attention of the women of the audience. Mere man could hardly be expected to do it justice but something of its appearance may be gathered when it is said that it was a Paris creation of scarlet pan velvet, enfolding the artist like a flaming shroud.

The ferns and palms on the stage were by the courtesy of the Carnegie Steel Company and Butz Brothers, while the stage furniture was by the courtesy of the Frew Furniture Company.

From the standpoint of the sponsors of the recital it need hardly be said that they are satisfied. A committee handled by Mrs. Grace Phillips Johnson handled the affair and did it most efficiently. And to the outstanding success of every element of the recital must be added the fact that the net proceeds go to the benefit of the Jameson Memorial Hospital.

The Sue Harvard recital is over; the songs are ended but the memory of that glorious night will remain with those fortunate enough to be present. As for Miss Harvard, certainly she will return to her home in New York City, gratified beyond measure at the remarkable tribute paid her Tuesday night in the Cathedral.

One way to find out whether an applicant has imagination is to ask him, if you don't care about grammar what he has seen half stones as large as.

STAR LORE NUMBER OF STARS SEEN ABOVE THE HORIZON

By ARTHUR DEV. CARPENTER
If one could see all the naked eye stars that are above the horizon on a favorable night, he would have a list more than 6,000 stars in view. But with rare exception the horizon is fringed with mist in all directions, so the number of otherwise visible stars is cut down to 2,000 or possibly 2,500. It is to be remembered that half of the stars of the celestial sphere are below the horizon. It is a surprise to discover how many more stars may be seen with a field glass—about 50,000 more than the unaided eye can pick up. The 40 inch lens at Yerkes observatory reaches more than 100,000,000 stars.

two registered. Other precincts report a similar condition and with but one day left for registration, Saturday October 4th, it seems doubtful that all of them can get in.

County Tax Receipt
To register, the voter must have a county or state tax receipt, paid either for this year or for 1929. City tax receipts are of no avail. In addition, the voter must have resided with in the district for two months.

The November election this year will decide who will be governor of Pennsylvania for the next four years, who will be the United States Senator and who will represent the thirty-eight districts of the state in Congress. Every Legislative district will elect representatives to the General Assembly, half of the state senatorial districts will elect senators, and in addition there is a State Supreme Court justice to be elected, a judge of the Superior Court, a secretary of Internal Affairs, and a lieutenant governor.

Alarmed by the apathy of the voters, the churches of the city have been urging their members to register and vote. Cards have been distributed calling upon the holder to register, and this may have some effect in increasing the registration on Saturday.

As it stands now, New Castle does not have forty per cent of its potential voter registered. There is one day left to register, and one day only. That day is Saturday, October 4th between the hours of seven and nine a. m. eleven and two, and four and ten.

Every voter must be registered if he would exercise his prerogative November 4. Unless you registered on one of the two previous days, you must register on Saturday, October 4th. Your registration last year is no good now. Saturday is the last call.

OLD MAIN PLANT OF BLAIR STEEL COMPANY BURNS

ed them to the steel plant, which is located just outside of the city limits. When Central and No. 4 arrived on the scene the flames leaped over the entire roof of the factory. Chief Lynn immediately sent another alarm and brought No. 3 and No. 5.

It was discovered that employees at the plant had failed in their endeavor to extinguish the flames which had suddenly sprung up in the region of the shipping room. The company fire hose was brought into use but the fire assumed such proportions that city apparatus was called. The fire began while about 10 employees were starting to mark their time cards to begin work. The plant, it is reported, employed about 65 men.

During the fire the covers from several oil containers in the mill department exploded. No one was injured.

A gas main which entered the plant from a shed outside was quickly shut off by direction of Chief Lynn.

Four lines comprising 4,000 feet of hose were laid. Three hydrant connections were made from Cascade street and another from Adams street. B truck of Central station and apparatus from No. 5 completed the pumping equipment.

At 10 a. m. firemen were still playing water on hot metal supports and parts of the building that remained standing. The roof was completely destroyed and the sides of the building skeletonized.

While crowds milled about the scene of destruction, George D. Blair, Jr., president of the plant, quietly surveyed the ruins. The holocaust had rendered useless practically every piece of machinery in the building. Some finished products were noticed near the charred remains of what were formerly packing cranes. The destruction included the equipment in the keeling department, where eight tandem mills were ruined. Electric motors, dynamos, wiring and complicated machinery that forms a part of modern plants was ruined.

Insurance was carried on the plant, but how much was not announced.

Crime Never Pays

TOO MANY DEER

NOTWITHSTANDING that there was much complaint last year in this state of the killing of does with fawns at their sides and subsequent starvation of the young animals, there will be an open season this year for does also, it is revealed.

Deer have become so numerous that there is insufficient feed for the entire number. In some parts of Pennsylvania the animals have become a menace to farm crops. When they fail to find enough feed in the woodlands they raid corn fields. The annual kill by hunters might operate to reduce the number of bucks, but does were entirely protected until two years ago. Diminishing the surplus may be needful but should be effected without unnecessary cruelty to young animals unable to care for themselves.

Pennsylvania has had great success in the propagation of wild life. Notwithstanding the yearly slaughter, the present excessive herd of deer has been built up in a quarter of a century from comparatively few animals. This has been possible because the state has so large an amount of waste land which is thickly covered with growths providing both the food and protection the animals require.

However, many farmers throughout the forest areas of the state feel that a great decrease in the number would be of benefit. In some counties special permits are given land owners to protect themselves against the ravages of the animals. The state pays for any special damage done by the marauders.

While the presence of so much wild life may be attractive to sportsmen, the impression seems to have taken hold upon some people that in the matter of deer, there may be entirely too many, when the agricultural interests of certain sections of the state are taken into consideration.

DISTRIBUTION FACTS

Business doesn't believe in miracles, but it is hopeful of extracting a fund of valuable information from reports on the distribution census, conducted for the first time this year. The first reports soon are to appear.

The data will cover every type of distributor and set forth sales, expenses, salaries, credit operations and other details, providing, all in all, a real aid in remedying our overproduction evil.

Those who directed the survey believe the whole distribution system is in the midst of major changes brought on by developments since the war and that the census should go a long way toward straightening out the tangle now evident on all sides.

That there is tremendous waste in industry is obvious, and that the burden of that waste bears heavily on industry is equally apparent. Once the waste is reduced and a shorter and more efficient path marked out for products in their movement to the consumers, the more likely it is that prices will be lower, consumption greater and purchasing power advanced.

Necessity may be the mother of our first really efficient distribution system, a fact which adds nothing to that American reputation for efficiency. With the largest and best transportation system in the world, the present inefficiency in national distribution is almost inexorable.

SENATORS

Once a United States senator always a senator by aspiration. There is something about service in that national legislative body which dissatisfies one with any other public or private activity. Sometimes in our history men have left the senate voluntarily and gladly, but it has not happened often. In most instances senators quit only when their constituents become somebody else's constituents.

Prestige, publicity, an opportunity to gain fame and perhaps to become vice president or president, are part of the lure. Then there is the unrivaled chance which membership in the upper chamber of congress affords to say one's say on every conceivable subject, and to utter it at any length desired—immediately to have it embalmed in the ink of the Congressional Record—and also to explain the loneliness of ex-senators.

Few, if any, are in Washington for the salary. The $10,000 a year they draw is merely an "honorarium" to some. But it is doubtful if those who were first attracted by the salary would resign to accept a higher salary in private life.

The fool of the official scepter, once grasped, lingers in the palm. Few men can be entirely happy without experiencing it again.

Judging from the popular criticisms of the senate in general and senators in particular, it is the lament of the people that things are thus.

STREET CARS

Each year the street cars of the country carry more passengers than in the preceding year. Last year approximately 15,000,000,000 persons were transported by electric cars.

This is conclusive evidence that the trolley car is not only holding its own, in large cities but is forging steadily ahead despite the increasing popularity of the automobile. Five years ago a great many managers of public utility transportation systems felt that the privately owned motor car was destined to react most unfavorably against their properties. For a while it appeared that individuals actually were turning toward the motor car for all personal and business transportation. The specter of bus competition also hovered ominously in the picture, and trolley line operators were not, to say the least, resting easily.

The automobile, however, seems to have brought about a return to the street car in congested cities. The traffic and parking situation has become a bugbear to the motorist, who has found it impossible to motor into congested districts quickly, or to find a place to park his car once he has arrived at his destination. Consequently, he has returned to street railway transportation as being quicker, easier and far less expensive if parking space has to be purchased and gasoline wasted at traffic lights and jams.

Street railway systems will continue to be part of the metropolitan picture. Buses, of course, will carry their share of the traffic even though they, like the automobile, must fight the battles of congested streets.

The hard part of religion to understand is why it makes people so mad at one another.

The happiest person is one that hasn't anything to scold about except feminine styles.

Britain Wonders.

Prohibition Politics.

An Advertising Job.

The Wall St. Shivers.

By ARTHUR G. BRISBANE

Changes come suddenly. Britishers wonder what this period of dull business, unemployment and declining foreign markets means to the British Empire.

France has risen from the war, enriched in territory and money, with two billions in gold, the world's highest per capita gold holdings.

England is discouraged, almost convinced that free trade spells destruction, but fearing to abandon it on an island that is not self-supporting. However, prosperity is not in bank accounts, or gold reserve. It's in intelligence and courage, and the British have both.

Prohibition in politics interests those interested in their vote, about one-half of the people. Mr. Roosevelt, wet Democratic candidate in New York, has gained strength by dealing roughly with Tammany Hall and the refusal of its important men to "waive immunity" before the grand jury.

Ordinarily it would be dangerous for Democratic candidates to antagonize Tammany Hall, which has power to cut the throat of any candidate. But Tammany is not elected. Mr. Roosevelt is not elected. Mr. Tuttle will be elected, and Tammany prefers to be whipped with Democratic whips rather than with Republican scorpions.

Elliot Roosevelt, son of the governor of New York, started in the advertising business yesterday with Albert Frank & Co. This young man, 20 years old, six feet two inches high, passed his examinations for Princeton, but decided that he would learn more in business than he would learn in college.

The young man's choice of an advertising career was wise, since he wants to be useful as well as prosperous.

The problem of the world is distribution. Production is more than adequate. The secret of distribution unlimited lies in advertising.

Mr. Badenoch, chairman of the board of trade committee on business conduct, says in Chicago:

"Why shouldn't the Russian government hedge on the Chicago market? I can give no reason why they shouldn't."

It seems that Russia wasn't really planning to lower the price of wheat to "spite and frighten capitalism." As Russia has gigantic quantities of wheat for sale, that's probably true.

Wall street continues to lack confidence in its beloved country, and puts prices lower. They dropped yesterday from 1 to 411 points. A good salesman could sell a large quantity of sack cloth and ashes at the corner of Broad and Wall streets. Wall street knows just what is back of some stock issues running into tens of millions of shares, cooked up to meet the gambling mania.

The stocks that represent real values are suffering because of the watered stock skeleton in the closet.

There are stocks in Wall street selling for less than half their worth now, less than a quarter or a tenth of what they will be worth five and 10 years hence.

There are other stocks selling for real money that are worth nothing.

In old-fashioned whist the motto used to be "when in doubt take the trick." Wall Street's motto is "when in doubt, discard your aces, that you may hold on to your deuces."

What became of all the money that all the people think they have lost? Who has got the thousands of millions lost in stocks by Americans, and the other thousands of millions lost by Europeans that gambled in the American stock book? What became of all that money? Who got it? Was it real money, or imaginary?

Mr. Sinclair, the oil man, has $72,500,000 cash, ready to loan, which nobody seems to want. Does that seem like a poverty-stricken, ruined nation?

He got seventy-two millions from Standard Oil of Indiana that bought something he had for sale, and paid cash. That hadn't seem "poor."

What's the matter with us? Is there really anything the matter with us, except lack of courage, and the fact that some backbones that were made of granite in September, 1929, have suddenly changed to mush in September, 1930?

Country Approves Naming Of Kellogg To World Court

Public Speculates As To Effect On American Membership In Tribunal Of This Election For Unexpired Term, Of Former Secretary Of State

The election of Frank B. Kellogg to membership in the World Court, to fill out the unexpired term of Charles Evans Hughes, which ends January 1, 1931, with the assumption that Mr. Kellogg will prior to that date be named for the ensuing term of nine years meets with general approval.

"No more fitting honor could have come to former Secretary of State Kellogg of St. Paul, to crown his very distinguished career, than that which the League of Nations accorded him in calling him to the bench of the World Court," says the SAINT PAUL PIONEER PRESS, affirming that "Mr. Kellogg has brilliantly served his state and the United States," and that he is now "to perform a service to the community of the world, which deserves its special appropriateness from his own contributions to the ideal of international peace." Also laudatory in its remarks is the DULUTH HERALD, as it declares that "No man in Minnesota's history ever had so distinguished a career, and Frank B. Kellogg has given distinguished service in every public capacity to which he has been called. Minnesota is proud of that career, as it has every right to be," concludes the Herald.

That "M. Briand's warm advocacy of the peace pact of which he is the author," THE SOUTH BEND TRIBUNE considers the honor emphasized by the fact that it was not "for lack of other distinguished American nominees." Noting that "this election out of 47 were cast for Mr. Kellogg," the SYRACUSE HERALD says: "the opposing votes had but a negligible significance, as they were presumably distributed among other Americans, owing to previous commitments."

Concerning Mr. Kellogg himself, the comments vary from that of the RICHMOND NEWS LEADER, which calls the election "the climax of a comeback," to that of the WHEELING INTELLIGENCER, which remarks: "This elevation is a singularly happy one. Mr. Kellogg is one of the foremost authorities in international law. To the UTICA OBSERVER-DISPATCH the election is "one of these appropriate results which sometimes appear in public events." In the opinion of the COLUMBUS OHIO STATE JOURNAL, Mr. Kellogg "has a great legal mind and while he has made minor mistakes, recent years brought him opportunities for world service which he met successfully." As the FLINT DAILY JOURNAL puts it: "He is a conservative, level headed man and possessed of that rare attribute, an 'international mind.'"

As is natural, this selection of Mr. Kellogg has renewed interest in both the Kellogg peace pact and the World Court itself, with some discussion as to the prospect of American adherence to that court. Says the MANCHESTER UNION: "In one respect, this election apt to prove a disappointment in League circles, and this will be associated with the alleged influence that he will be able to exert toward bringing the United States into the World Court. This question will doubtless come up for final solution at the next Congress, but the disposition that will be made of it is not likely to be affected in any way by the personnel of the American representation at the Hague," predicts this paper. As to that, remarks the SEATTLE DAILY TIMES, "where we go in or remain out, Mr. Kellogg will lend strength and dignity to the tribunal."

The DETROIT FREE PRESS, which is of the opinion that Mr. Kellogg's election "will create no great amount of excitement in this country," still considers that "those Americans who believe that the United States should enter this international tribunal without first making absolutely sure that its interests are likely to regard Mr. Kellogg's selection as the 'American member' of the World Court as a break in their favor."

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS prophesies that "entrance by this nation into the world court presumably is a question of time only, and probably a short time." THE HARTFORD DAILY COURANT, noting the "close relationship between the pact, which outlaws war among nations, and the Court, which provides means for the peaceful settlement of international disputes," says: "So desirable would be the participation of the United States in the activities that it is greatly to be hoped that its adherence to the protocol will not be longer delayed, either by factious opposition at home or by suspicious forces abroad." THE ROCK ISLAND ARGUMENT, "the manly to see his country fully recognize that court."

Citing the fact that "the Court will convene in special session on October 20, to consider an issue between France and Switzerland regarding frontier customs zones," the SAN ANTONIO EXPRESS is gratified that "Mr. Kellogg probably will sit with the Court for this special session."

Many papers see hope for further achievements in work for world peace by Mr. Kellogg. As the KALAMAZOO GAZETTE says: "In choosing Mr. Kellogg for this high honor, the League editors have no doubt given due consideration to the man's sincere interest in the cause of world peace, as well as to his eminence as a man of the law." ## Initiation Degree At Star Of Wales

Orphanage Secretary Speaks Here—Welsh Notes Of Interest

(By W. A. JOHNS)
(Byrthion)

A meeting of the Star of Wales lodge will be held next Saturday evening, October 4, at the Emmanuel Baptist church on the corner of Jefferson and Reynolds streets, when the initiation degree will be put on by the officers of the lodge. This was announced from the chair by the president, Joseph Leyde, so all the members are requested to be present to witness the beautiful degree.

One of the best degrees of the order so the lodge will commence at 7:30 sharp and once the degree is started the officers want to get through without anybody to interfere by coming late. So everybody be on time next Saturday evening, October 4.

Rev. James S. Jewell, field secretary of the Baptist Orphanage of Pittsburgh occupied the pulpit of the Emmanuel Baptist church last Sunday evening and gave the history of the Christian work being done at the Orphanage; that they are able to take care of 45 little children and 35 adults and they depend on the Baptist church to keep the home going. He had the picture of the Home and the pictures of some of the aged people living there. His daughter, Miss Jewell, was accompanying him to New Castle and Mr. and Mrs. William C. Jenkins, of Delaware avenue entertained them.

The people of our city were shocked, especially the South Side people by the sudden death of our friend, Richard Griffiths, Electric street, which took place at the New Castle hospital on Friday, September 26. He worked part of the day before, but he was overcome by the great heat of the day. So the people are in great sympathy with Mrs. Richard Griffiths and the family. A vote of sympathy was extended to them by the Emmanuel Baptist church at last Sunday morning service.

Our friend and co-worker in the vineyard of the Master, Rev. Rees T. Williams, is still holding his own and more than that if possible. So his record as a preacher and shepherd is as good as any in the city. He is busy on the Sabbath Day preaching the gospel of Jesus Christ. In the morning he delivers his message in the Welsh language to his people and in the evening he will tell his people the old story of the Cross in the language of the United States. Then through the week he is making every effort to live his sermons by visiting the unbelievers, the orphans, the needy ones and he is taking much pride in the children and young people of his church, and is arranging to meet them very often in the church and other places.

So he is filling his calling up to the letter and worthy to be called a very faithful Shepherd. Our wish is that more success will follow him and the First Congregational church, so the church building will come too small to take care of the new members that will join the church in the future. God will continue to bless him and the church.

Mrs. Sarah Davies of Adams street has returned from her visit at Allentown where she attended to her sick brother David Johns, who had just returned home from the Mercy hospital, Pittsburgh, where he was operated on and at the present time he is improving very nicely and able to be around once more. The friends David Johns and Mrs. Johns are of the live wire avenue for years and years. Mrs. Johns is a great singer and she took the leading part in the cantata, Our Flag, under the leadership of Thomas D. Richards, Warren, O., some years ago.

Mrs. Sydney Johns of Garfield avenue has returned home after a few weeks visit with her sister and family at the city of Buffalo, N. Y. She reported having a wonderful good time.

Mrs. John Evans and daughter Nettie, South Mill street, and Mr. and Mrs. Brinley Hughes, Cunningham avenue, were visitors over Sunday at Warren, O., and they reported finding Thomas D. Richards, brother of Mrs. Evans in a better condition so he is able to leave his bed and go out to visit his old friends. Also Mrs. Richards was better after her return from Wales, where she spent three months in visiting her relatives and friends at Llanelly and other places. She had a lovely time at the Llanelly Elsteddff.

The National Elsteddff of Wales will be held at Port Talbot, South Wales in the year 1932. A beautiful place on the sea shore of Wales, where a good many ships are trading every day of the week and plenty of railroads and busses to take good care of the people and the people from Port Talbot that are living at New Castle are delighted over the fact that the Elsteddff will be held at their former home in the year 1932 and they are starting already to prepare for the grand event.

SHE LOVED TO EAT BUT WAS ALWAYS PUNISHED FOR IT

Much of the suffering from so-called "indigestion" or acid-dyspepsia could be avoided if everyone could know what thousands like Miss Lillian Ralston have learned. This New York City business woman, who lives at 1160 Park Avenue, says:

"I suffered from headaches and heartburn after meals; couldn't sleep like I should; never felt right."

"For five years I experimented with medicines and treatments, until I learned about Pape's Diapepsin. I have used three packages now; have gained five pounds, and feel fine. I eat meats and anything I please. At the first sign of discomfort I chew a tablet of Pape's Diapepsin and the trouble is gone in a minute."

If you, too, suffer from sourness, gas, belching, nausea, headaches, dizziness, or pain after eating—either regularly or just at times, get a box of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist. Then you need never worry again about what you eat. These tablets are like candy and just as harmless. If you would like to try them before buying, write Pape's Diapepsin, Wheeling, W. Va., and you will receive a sample box, FREE.

Harry Jaud Plans To Assume New Job

Has Prospects Of Taking Charge Of A Large Silk Organization In Philadelphia

Harry Jaud, who has been prominently associated with the business and industrial life of this city for the past twenty-six years and is well and favorably known by his many associates of those years, plans to leave the city about the middle of October.

He will go to Philadelphia, where he has prospects of becoming active head in charge of operations of a large silk plant organization.

During his many years in this district, Mr. Jaud was associated with the Woodhouse-Bopp Silk industry at West Pittsburg, having been in charge of that plant for over twenty-five years. His successful operation in that period of time was due to his expert knowledge of the silk industry and if, as he expects, he becomes the active head in charge of operations of the large silk manufacturing organization in Philadelphia, his future success is assured.

He was originally trained in the cloth manufacturing business and is an outstanding expert in the manufacture of silk materials. His departure will be regretted by many people of this district.

KOPPEL

Funeral services were held for the late Hugh H. Warren, 65, of Koppel Wednesday at 2 o'clock in his late home along the Koppel-New Galilee road. Burial was made in the North Sewickley cemetery.

Mr. Warren died Sunday, September 27, as the result of blood poisoning. His hand was slightly injured September 18 on the farm of Alex Scott in Enon Valley as he was helping Scott to fill a silo. In some manner he cut his hand but as the wound bled little he thought little of it.

The following Sunday when his hand became more painful and began to swell, a doctor was consulted and he declared the wound had become infected and dressed the injury immediately. Death occurred on the day stated.

Mr. Warren was a resident of Koppel for eight years.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Sarah (McKim) Warren; two daughters, Mrs. Arthur Vogel of Pittsburgh and Mrs. John Reed of Wilkensburg; two sons, Oliver Warren of Glenshaw and H. H. Warren, Jr., of Pittsburgh; one step-daughter, Elizabeth Warren of Koppel, and 12 grandchildren. Two sisters, Mrs. Sarah Rhule and Mrs. Herman Hahn of Pittsburgh, and one brother, Robert Warren of Koppel.

Mrs. Mychalina Pedura of Koppel was admitted to the Providence hospital at Beaver Falls for surgical treatment.

The girls of the Koppel office of the K. I. C. & E. company held a theatre party Tuesday evening at Beaver Falls.

OFFUTT'S

Prohibition Enforcement Possible If A Smedley Butler Were In Charge Declares Dry Senator From Iowa

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer
WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Ask any

What does he think of Maj. Maurice Campbell's complaints of his troubles as eastern New York prohibition administrator?

Isn't he shocked at the major's complaints of his official superior's indifference toward his efforts to dry up Manhattan? Can he credit the major's mighty broad intimation of an apparently deliberate policy on the part of some of those superiors actually to cripple his activities when they gave promise of becoming genuinely effective?

And that wet will shrug his shoulders cynically and invariably answer in substance:

"Of course it's all true but it's no news."

"It's the same way in every prohibition administrative district. Why make an especial fuss about the one from which Campbell recently was forced into resigning, undoubtedly because he was over-zealous and annoying?"

There isn't anything to be said on the subject—except what has been said repeatedly.

Thus, in order to get any really live comment to Major Campbell's account of his adventures as a dry administrator, it is necessary to consult not a wet (the wets being completely talked out), but one of the dries, who is unyielding as a staunch prohibitionist.

Take Senator Smith, Brookhart of Iowa.

The Iowan did not attempt for a minute to dispute the correctness of Major Campbell's statement of enforcement (or non-enforcement) conditions in the eastern New York district.

He did, indeed, express himself with the qualification, "if" things are as Campbell represents them," then so-and-so.

But he did not employ "if" in a tone of skepticism.

He used it reportorially.

"There are repercussions," he told me, "from a great many districts which require investigation."

"I have a new one right here"—the senator tapped one of his desk drawers.

ers vigorously—"post-dating the major's, and even stronger."

"And they are going," continued the Hawkeye statesman, "with powerful emphasis, 'to be investigated.'"

"I have the necessary resolution already pending—a resolution for an inquiry, not merely into the situation in a few selected districts, but an inquiry extending into every nook and corner in the country."

It also will be an investigation, explained the senator, of prohibition exclusively—not of crime in general, like the Wickham commission's.

"I shall urge this resolution's adoption," he added, "as soon as congress meets—and it will be adopted. All honest dries favor it. Many wets favor it likewise."

Major Campbell's opinion, as recently expressed, is that prohibition has been so bedeviled by politics that it is too late now ever to be enforced effectively.

"Nothing of the kind" contradicted the Iowan. "It can be enforced as soon as officials who want it enforced are put in charge of enforcing it."

Yet Major Campbell professes to have been originally a prohibitionist. "Ah," said the senator, "but his superiors!" Well, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman, concerning whom the major has been particularly free with his complaints had a long prohibition record. "Yes, and Lowman's superior?" queried the Hawkeye sardonically.

"Unless," proceeded the senator, "the executive at the very top is a real dry, the assistant, in such a post as the one immediately ranking Major Campbell's must be an exceptionally strong character."

"A Smedley Butler could dry up the country, even as an assistant secretary. To be sure, every effort would be made to force him out, but it never could go quite the limit. Those above him would not dare to push him to that extremity."

"Lacking a Smedley Butler, a weaker incumbent will do what he knows the man at the top expects of him."

The top? The very top?

"I never found any fault with the White House on prohibition grounds."

answered the senator promptly, "except for keeping folk who are not in sympathy with it in key enforcement positions."

At that, Attorney General Mitchell, now in charge of enforcement, rates as a dry.

"He isn't in charge of industrial alcohol," said the Iowan.

No, the treasury retains that, but according to Dr. J. M. Doran, industrial alcohol has ceased to be the bootlegger's main reliance. In that respect the doctor awards the present-day palm to corn sugar.

"Major Campbell doesn't pay many compliments to Dr. Doran, either," concluded the senator.

County Doctors To Sponsor Fete

Wives, Special Guests To Be Entertained At Program October 16

Elaborate arrangements were in the making today for the program of entertainment to be given by the Lawrence County Medical Society at the Jameson Memorial hospital nurse's home, Thursday evening, October 16, in the place of the society's regular monthly meetings.

Dr. Miller of Pittsburgh, will deliver an illustrated talk on witchcraft and other features will be provided for. Each member of the society is entitled to bring three guests. Physicians must have the names of their guests in the hands of Dr. W. A. Womer, secretary, by October 11.

Plan Activities For St. Philip And James Church

During the coming winter the choir of St. Philip and James church at Miller and Charles street has a list of activities planned which will extend until the spring weather. A new stage will be installed, a new curtain hung and new scenery painted. This will be used in a number of plays that will be presented in the coming months under the direction of Miss Marie Dutkiewicz, organist of the church and instructor in dramatics.

The first play to be presented will be "Onward Song," a musical production. During the late fall and winter night classes in languages and fine arts will be conducted in the church school. The choir is also planning to send delegates to Erie, Pa., in October to attend the meeting of the Filaret Literary association.

Bo Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

By Central Press
NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Gotham is in the throes of one of its sporadic waves of moral indignation, with Tammany in the pillory.

This is an old act. As far back as any living New Yorker can remember the forces of Sweetness and Light have arisen, on occasion, to crush Tammany.

As one of The Braves put it the other day:

"This present trouble is a joke. The Tammany majority every election day, shows what the people think of such bunk."

A PHILOSOPHER.
In this connection—on the subject of good government in New York—hark to the words of the wisest politician that ever lived. Said the Worthy Brother:

"When a man can do a thing and doesn't do it, that's because he doesn't want to do it. If you didn't want a rogue in office, there wouldn't be one; if a monstrous policy offended you, it would disappear. Your officials, whatever they may be, may at least claim you as their origin."

"If they are black, it's because you are black; and there's not one word of them, said in criticism, that could not be said of you."

"A people—and that means you—gets invariably a government wed with its desires. Be pure, and your government will be pure; be brave, it will have courage; be free and freedom will abide in your high places and descend therefrom to the rabble least among you. TAMMANY'S ANSWER.
That's the answer that Tammany is handing today to the forces of Sweetness and Light who are up on their hind legs in Gotham crying to high heaven that their office holders are betraying them.

"Your representative represents" and he in office is the reflex of those who put him there. Your officer is as natural to his constituents as your apple to its tree; and in his rottenness, or his sound sweetness, he tells the story of his origin. He wouldn't be there and he couldn't stay there, save for you. You want him, and there he is.

In New York, it is seldom that the "representative citizen" does anything to assert himself in practical politics, save growl as he casts his ballot, and grumble as he pays his taxes.

The Lesser Breed of politics act otherwise. They join their own particular party, crowd to the front, shout, seek office, grab what they may and never permit a question of public morality to "get between the

"Twas two o'clock when he came in, and rising in my bed.
"Where have you been till such an hour?" to him I sadly said.
"Oh she was hungry," he replied. "She had a sandwich yen.
And so we hopped into the car to find a hot dog den."
"And did you find one?" I inquired.
"Of course, I did," said he.
"There's one just twenty miles away—an Indian tepee!"

There was no harm in such a trip. So do our customs change.
That youngsters view with no concern what older minds think strange. This hot dog craze is modern stuff. The car is at the door.
And when a girl wants frankfurters, what's twenty miles or more?
Distance and time are different now and taste has altered too.
When girls in our day hungry were, a hot dog wouldn't do.

We took the trolley home at night, no motor cars had we.
Who stayed till after midnight knew an angry dad he'd see.
But, is it fair to judge them now by standards long outworn?
The modern girls, it seems, like food their mothers viewed with scorn.
Though twenty miles seems far to us, it's just a hop to them.
Who yearn for hot dog sandwiches at two o'clock a. m.

Sawdust And Sand Are Used At Postoffice

To keep the lobby and interior rooms of the New Castle postoffice spic and span during the next few months it's going to require 2,000 pounds of sand, 1,000 pounds of sawdust, 150 pounds of fine salt, 30 gallons of paraffine oil and a similar amount of kerosene—besides plenty of sweeping.

Today Janitor George Davies explained why the office is ordering these supplies. It all goes to make up the favorite sweeping compound that is used.

Looking forward to the coming winter the office is also asking for 150 pounds of rock salt. Ice and snow about the office walks will be kept clean by sprinkling it about when necessary, Mr. Davies said.

Twenty Five Cows At Night Forty Six Animals In Morning

Speaking of the problems of stock raising and the increase in the cattle population of any district, the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, which transports many cattle over its lines, had a rather unusual experience recently.

New Castle Junction on the Baltimore and Ohio is what is known as a rest stop for cattle and other livestock transported over its extensive lines.

One night recently there arrived a stock train on which there were twenty-five cows, which were scheduled for a rest at the Junction.

As is the custom, the cows, twenty-six in number, were taken from their cars and placed in the pen or corral at the Junction until the next morning.

The surprise of the attendants and railroad men on the following morning, when it was time to load the cows up, may be imagined, when instead of twenty-six cows, they found forty-six animals in all.

During the night there had been born in the corral more than twenty calves, there being one or two dead.

In spite of the surprise occasioned by this great and almost doubled population, the cows and their newborn offspring were loaded up and sent on to their destination.

One cow had triplets, several had borne two calves and there were quite a number with one newborn calf. At any rate the birthrate during the night had been so great that there were twenty-five calves to be transported in addition to the twenty-six cows brought in the night before.

FRESHEST GROCERIES

Not to be found in old packages

FOOD and other groceries in A&P stores are always fresh because they are sold quickly. New supplies, therefore, are constantly coming into these stores. Nothing stays on A&P shelves long enough to become stale.

For this reason you find in A&P stores only the latest packages put out by the manufacturers. Sometimes these packages are smaller than the old ones. Sometimes they are larger. But the manufacturers often leave the prices of their packages unchanged on account of varying costs.

This is why sometimes you get a smaller or a larger package in A&P stores than you get in other stores which sell the same goods. Old packages are never to be found where sales are rapid.

Murder Suspect Held By Police

Dennison, Ohio, Police Hold Murder Suspect—Victim Found Badly Mutilated

TWO HUMAN EARS FOUND IN AUTO

(International News Service) DENNISON, O., Oct. 1.—Police today were holding Frank Marafioce, 40 for questioning in connection with the murder of an unidentified man whose badly mutilated body was found in a ditch near here yesterday.

Marafioce was arrested when two human ears, wrapped in a newspaper and believed to be those of the murdered man, were found hidden in the suspect's automobile. Police have started an intensive investigation and today were searching for two alleged accomplices of Marafioce, said to live in Pittsburgh.

The victim's body, with slashes on the hands and wrists which police believe indicate a bitter struggle for life, was found half buried in a ditch beside the road. A butcher knife and iron pipe were found near the body.

A not bearing the name "Antonio Carbone, 55 Santo Street" was found in the dead man's pockets and furnished detectives with their only clue to his identity.

Residents of the neighborhood told police they had seen two men tussling in the street early Monday evening, but thinking they were boys, did not investigate. Robbery as a possible motive was discarded when $15.90 in cash was found with the note.

Foot prints and blood stains near the scene of the crime led police to believe that the victim apparently had attempted to escape his assailants.

Marafioce denied any knowledge of the crime and claimed he did not know how the ears came to be in his machine.

The murdered man was 40 years old, had dark hair and weighed about 150 pounds. A dagger was tattooed on the right arm.

(International News Service) CHARLESTOWN, Miss., Oct. 1.—Juanita Sullivan, 14, was in jail here today after admitting she shot and killed her father, T. C. Sullivan, because he had mistreated her mother.

Neighbors with whom she had taken refuge after killing her father informed police who brought her here from her home in Phillips, a nearby village.

Juanita told police that after many hours of thought and prayer over the matter that she came to the conclusion she must slay her father.

She said her mother had left home about a week ago because of the father's conduct toward her and had gone to the home of her father in Oklahoma.

"I made up my mind that the only way out of the trouble was to kill him," the girl said tearfully. "I got daddy's shotgun and went to the front of the house and waited with muzzle sticking out of the window."

"When he came in the front yard, I pulled the trigger," she concluded. Sullivan was killed instantly.

HOOVER HURLS FIRST BALL IN SERIES OF 1930

er gates were opened, hordes of holders of the cheaper seats flocked through the turnstiles. There they sat for hours, patiently waiting for the umpire's cry "play ball."

Nearly 250 girls, smartly attired in red berets, ushered the patrons to seats in the grandstands. They were drilled for days and did their work with neatness and dispatch.

Across the street from the park, directly back of the center field scoreboard, nearly 2,000 people witnessed the proceedings from roof grandstands built on tenements. Each of the seventeen roof stands held about 100 persons. At the windows of these homes and out on the balconies others were grouped. All had a fine view.

The owners of each of these buildings were reaping a financial harvest, for each seat cost $5 and they were eagerly snapped up. Shibe Park officials long ago made ineffectual efforts to stop this "bootlegging" of birds-eye view seats for games here but the city government upheld the owners of the tenements.

Sign of Activity. The first sign of activity on the ball field came when Nick Altrock and Al Schacht, the American league baseball clowns, pranced out onto the arena, doffing their caps with profound bows to the multitude which greeted them with mingled cheers and boos.

Altrock and Schacht trotted out to the center of the field where they staged the Ruth Saint Dennis death dance for the edification of the public.

Donning skirts they flitted and chirped about airily, as if tossing garlands of roses in some strange, wild ecstasy.

The comedians put up a tennis net and gave a terrible imitation of "Big Bill" Tilden versus Vinny Richards, or something. This act was received with a deafening silence.

Undaunted, Altrock and Schacht then erected a ring, donned boxing gloves and staged a realistic imitation of the famous "Tunney-Dempsey" "battle of the long count." The crowd gave them a good hand for this one.

The clowns concluded their stuff with a snappy boxing bout which ended with Schacht taking one on the button for a "slow motion" count. As the pair jogged back to the A's dugout they were given a rousing round of applause. The fans knew these fellows of old but they like 'em just the same.

President Arrives. President Hoover and party arrived at 1:12 p. m. As the party marched in thunderous applause rose from the stands.

The president doffed his hat. There were about 50 in his party. He wore a dark brown suit and a dark brown felt hat. He had the appearance of being a hardy individual, for unlike the majority of spectators, he wore no top coat.

President Hoover and party, including five cabinet members, were escorted to their boxes back of the A's dugout.

At 1:18 p. m. "Lefty" Grove stroled up and nonchalantly began to warm up. This was the signal for a round of applause. Almost simultaneously, Grimes began warming up over near the Cardinals' dugout.

First Inning, Cardinals. Douthit up—Ball one, wide; strike one, called; Bishop threw out Douthit at first. Adams up: ball one, wide; strike one, called; strike two, called; strike three, Adams fanned. Frish up: ball one, wide; strike one, wide; strike two, Bishop threw out Frish at first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

First Inning, Athletics. Bishop up: Strike one, called; ball one, outside; strike two, called; foul; ball two, wide; strike three, called. Bishop fanned. Dykes up: strike one, called; Dykes grounded out to Bottomley unassisted. He did not mean to hit the ball, it was a weak tap.

Cochrane up: ball one, low; strike one, called; strike two, called; ball two, inside. The ball almost beat Cochrane. Ball three, wide; ball four, wide; Cochrane walked. Grimes shouted "strike" just before the umpire called the last one a ball. Simmons up: strike one, called; ball one, wide; it was a pitch out. Mancuso threw to first to trap Cochrane but Micky dived back to the bag in time. Strike two, swung. Grimes tried twice to pick Cochrane off first but Micky was too wily. Cochrane was out stealing. Mancuso to Frisch. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Second Inning, Cardinals. Bottomley up: Strike one, called; ball one, inside; strike two, foul; ball two, low; foul; strike three; Bottomley fanned, swung. Hafey up: foul strike one; the ball hit the umpire's chest protector and the spectators laughed. Ball one, low; Hafey popped to Dykes. Blades up: strike one, swung; foul strike two; ball one, low; it hit the ground three feet in front of the plate; ball two, high and inside; strike three, swung; Blades fanned. Grove was pouring the ball across the plate with terrific speed and the Cards were swinging late. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

President Hoover With Official Party At Philadelphia-Cardinals Opener Today

SHIBE PARK, PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 1.—The baseball fan, President Hoover, was scheduled to toss out the first ball in the opening game of the world series here today.

He and his distinguished party were due to arrive shortly before game time. Accompanied by five cabinet officers, and with Mayor Harry A. Mackey of Philadelphia as his host, the president was to enjoy an afternoon of his most fancied sport, next to fishing, as a neutral onlooker.

Mr. Hoover, however, will not be with his husband today as she is in Indianapolis attending a convention of the National Girl Scouts, of which she is honorary president.

Mr. Hoover and his official party were to occupy a box just to the right of the Athletics' dugout. It is almost in the same location from which President and Mrs. Hoover saw the Athletics conquer the Chicago Cubs in the final contest of the world's baseball championship last year.

RIVETS MAKE THE TANK-CAR OIL-TIGHT

The TORRID ZONE STEEL FURNACE is gas-tight and dust-tight because it is riveted

WARM air, the choice of all real authorities on healthful heating, reaches perfection through the Torrid Zone. The special construction of this longer-lasting furnace insures clean, warm air, at all times free from fumes — and brighter and happier homes.

For just as the tank-car is made leak-proof by hot riveting and cold-calking . . . so the Torrid Zone Furnace of boiler-plate steel is made gas, smoke and dust-tight.

That means no gas-tainted air when the furnace is freshly fueled or banked for the night. No dust or smoke from the registers following a shake down. Even the cellar or furnace-room will be cleaner than you ever thought it could be, because of the unusually snug firing and ash doors. Every part of the Torrid Zone is as tight as a drum.

Two other essentials to health and comfort — humidity and ventilation — obtainable only with warm air systems are a part of the Torrid Zone. The humidifier has twice the evaporating area inside the casing of ordinary water pans, and it is positioned for rapid evaporation. Air

The efficiency of a Torrid Zone magnifies your coal pile. Oversized heating surface causes Torrid Zone furnaces to produce from 10% to 20% more heat from the fuel than other furnaces, hence they will heat with less fuel than other furnaces will consume. Models for soft coal, coke, hard coal, lignite, wood, gas or oil.

National Farm Outlook

By ARTHUR H. JENKINS Editor, The Farm Journal Written for Central Press

There was a grand hurrah, about three years ago, over the wonderful new uses that had been found for cornstalks, straw, rice hulls, and other farm by-products commonly thought of as waste.

Many very good economists, and others not so good, thought that if more of these waste materials could be turned into cash, it would be a very good thing for many farmers. And so it would. There is no doubt about that.

The list of uses for waste materials is too long to give here, but is ran from synthetic lumber to silk stockings, and from newspapers to cooking gas. Moreover, it is a fact that scores of useful things can be made from these different forms of cellulose.

The most promising scheme, as well as the simplest, was to make paper from cornstalks. A company was formed with plenty of money — most of it English. I am 'old'—a mill was built, and actual production of paper pulp on a large scale was begun. The plan was to make pulp only to be sold to paper mills for conversion into paper.

It seemed that the problems of buying cornstalks, storage, conversion into pulp and sales, were all successfully solved. But the plan broke down, it appears, at what was thought to be its strongest point. The pulp itself turned out to be not what the paper mills wanted, and they would not, or at least did not, buy enough of it.

Anyhow, the mill went into the hands of receivers last spring, and I learn that its affairs are now to be wound up.

It is a great pity. Agriculture needs a new outlet for some of its products. Its market for hay and oats has been shrinking because of the disappearance of 9,000,000 horses

Reception Honors Rev. Weisenberger

St. Joseph's Congregation Pays Tribute To Former Pastor

Social Hall of St. Joseph's Parish, South Jefferson street, was the scene last evening of a very pleasant affair in honor of the Rev. A. J. Weisenberger, pastor of St. Peter's church, Butler, and until a short time ago pastor of St. Joseph's church.

It was in the nature of a reception for Father Weisenberger, who during his stay here had made many friends and was tendered here by the members of the local parish.

In the nature of a surprise, it proved most enjoyable to all who participated, numbering several hundred in all. Father Weisenberger was brought here by a committee appointed for the purpose, which committee later returned him to his home in Butler.

Rev. Lumen Popp, was chairman of the affair and a very interesting program was given by the children and several men of the parish. The program started at 8:30 o'clock and continued for an hour and a half.

Children of the parish rendered a very delightful program of songs and recitations and addresses were given by Adolph Green, James L. Rocks, Rev. Fr. J. A. Doerr, present pastor of the church.

The climax of the evening was reached, when Leo Moosman in well chosen words, in which he expressed the appreciation of the members of the parish for the work done by Father Weisenberger, presented the former pastor with a purse, the gift of the people of the parish as a material evidence of their appreciation of his work here.

The response of Father Weisenberger was one of appreciation for the kindness he had experienced at the hands of the people of the parish and the people of the city and concluded the evening's program.

Important event in life of man: Fills stomach; fills head; fills house; fills busted straight; fills bank; fills grave.

No wonder Byrd's party escaped boredom. They had a keep busy to use, all the things mentioned in the magazine ads.

Losing Flesh Is Easier Than Gaining Weight, Avers Dr. Clendening

Bodily Conformation Must Be Considered If You're Long And Lean; Fattening Tough Job

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
Nearly as many people ask me how to get fat as ask me how to get thin. Both are tough jobs. As everyone knows who has ever tried, it is easy to make rules, but hard to follow them out. Make no mistake about it. If you are out to change your weight you have to work.

To get a thin person fat, however, is really a harder piece of work than to get a fat person thin. It is possible in every case to reduce if the fat one will just work hard enough. But you take a real natural thin one and there are times, no matter what you do, when you cannot get her any heavier. This is largely due to the fact that the constitutionally thin person simply cannot stuff too much food into himself. His very thinness goes with a dropped stomach and a dropped set of intestines and he is not designed for a great deal of eating. He usually has stomach troubles of one kind or another.

Of course in certain instances there may be actual disease present. There may be tuberculosis. If it is an old chronic fibroid type there will be no cough—none of the ordinary signs of tuberculosis.

In other instances diabetes may be present. The likelihood of its presence should be more easily suspected. The onset is usually fairly abrupt. The weight loss occurs rapidly, and hunger, frequently urination and great thirst go along with it.

Other chronic diseases which cause thinness are goiter of the exophthalmic type, and a rare disease of the nervous and muscular system causing atrophy. In acute conditions such as pneumonia or influenza the body loses a great deal of weight, but this is known and easily recognized.

What we are talking about here is none of these. We are talking of the constitutionally thin person. Born thin—never gets any fatter.

Usually tall—at any rate of narrow, slender build. Vertical as the cross-word puzzle fends would say, not horizontal. There are several kinds of people in the world—draught horses and race horses—St. Bernards and greyhounds. The constitutionally thin person is the greyhound.

But with the external conformation go certain peculiarities in the arrangement of the internal organs. The chest is very long and narrow. The lungs are enormous. They can breathe in and out twice as much air as the fat horizontal persons. The abdominal wall usually sags. The stomach hangs very low. It is hard for the stomach to push food out of its opening (the pylorus) into the intestines. The intestines themselves hang very low in the abdomen. These people are usually constipated. Their muscles have not the body nor the strength that other people's have.

With all these difficulties it is no wonder the fattening cure must take into account the whole body. How that cure can be arranged we will take up in detail tomorrow.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening cannot diagnose or give personal answers to letters from readers. Where questions are of general interest, however, they will be taken up, in order, in the daily column. Address your queries to Dr. Logan Clendening, care of this paper. Write legibly and not over 200 words.)

State Spends More For Luxuries Than For Its Education

Tobacco Sales Amount Into Millions, Alone Exceeding Sum For Schools

(Special to The News)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Just as Pennsylvania spends far more money on passenger automobiles than on its public schools, so also does it value its tobacco, soft drinks, amusements, jewelry, cosmetics, sporting goods and toys more highly than education, according to the National Education Association.

For luxuries Pennsylvania in 1928 the last year for which such figures have been gathered, spent a total of $574,228,005, whereas at the same time it expended only $188,023,939 on its public schools, elementary, secondary, and collegiate. A comparison of these figures indicates that in terms of money spent, Pennsylvania opened its ear to its schools to the extent of only 32.74 per cent of the amount it paid for its luxuries.

Tobacco was the greatest of these luxuries in the Keystone state, sales amounting to $192,067,434, alone exceeding the sum spent on the public schools of the State. Soft drinks, ice cream, candy and chewing gum during the year cost Pennsylvania $165,960,528. The State's bill for theatres, movies and similar amusements was $97,126,263, for jewelry, perfumes, and cosmetics $74,248,278, and for sporting goods and toys $44,819,502.

Inasmuch as the survey shows that the percentage relationship between the two expenditures for the county as a whole was 38.25 per cent, it would seem that Pennsylvania was more addicted to luxury than education than most of the country.

Dennis A. Harris, 54. Widely Known Theatre Executive Dies From Operation

HAD FINE CAREER IN SHOW BUSINESS

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, Oct. 1.—Funeral arrangements for Dennis A. Harris, 54, widely known theatre executive and president of the Harris Amusement Companies, who died in Mercy hospital last night after a brief illness, were being completed today.

Harris underwent an operation for appendicitis last Wednesday and was believed recovering when he suffered a relapse and died suddenly last night.

Farmers Speeding Up Corn Cutting

In view of several light frosts this week farmers are speeding up efforts to get their corn cut before any very serious damage has been done.

The recent frosts, while comparatively heavy in some places, do not appear to have done any serious damage to the corn and other crops. Some corn has already been cut, but the greater part was still standing at the beginning of the week. In spite of the long dry season there will be a fair crop of corn in the country.

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle.

After last night's demonstration in the Cathedral when Sue Harvard appeared in a benefit recital for the Jameson Memorial hospital it seems to me that the contention that New Castle is a damned good city is more or less confirmed. Any city that turns out a crowd like that for a local musician and gets as noisy in its appreciation as did that crowd, certainly has a lot of real folks within its borders.

In the current issue of the Purdue college newspaper, Jack Christman, a New Castle boy who is one of the mainstays of the Purdue football team gets quite a play. The article deals with the opening battle of the season in Ross-Ade Bowl, with Christman's picture dressing the top of the article. In it, the writer says that one player sure of his berth is "Jack Christman, hardy little senior."

Jack is a fixture at right guard for Purdue, which means that the New Castle lad has something besides a uniform and a head gear. This is his senior year at Purdue but he has been playing on the varsity since the middle of his sophomore year. The only criticism I have of the article is the adjective "little" in describing him. The last time I saw him, which was a few weeks ago he was about as little as a load of coal.

Frank Dean is being accused of picking cantaloupes off cucumber vines this year. It seems that after he had planted his cucumber patch, some one tossed a cantaloupe into it and the seeds took root. Now the cantaloupes are disputing the right of way with the cucumbers and it may be that some of the "cukes" may be cantaloupes in disguise.

In case you don't know, and who doesn't, the Service Division, play "Odds" opens tonight in the Cathedral and customers it really will be worth your while to see it, either tonight or Thursday.

In justice to John Barrymore it might be said that he is pretty good too, but there wasn't room in "Odds" for him. You see it is a race track story and John goes more for tales of the sea. There won't be much grand opera about it, and nothing has been lifted from "Hamlet", but if you want a laugh, any size, get yourself a ticket.

Heir To Fortune Reported Dying

Modern Rip Van Winkle In Franklin Hospital Near Death —$10,000 Awaits Him

(International News Service) FRANKLIN, Pa., Oct. 1.—John C. Raymond, seventy years old Montana rancher who paid a Rip Van Winkle visit to this city when he returned after a thirty year absence to claim an estate, was reported near death here today.

The aged man was taken to the Franklin hospital immediately after he arrived here by train. The length of the journey proved too strenuous for the rancher. Since his arrival he has been in a state of collapse unable to talk with the few friends who recognized him after his long absence. Judge Parker issued a court decree making it possible for the man to obtain the $10,000 bequest of Mrs. Sarah Lamberton as soon as he is physically able to take over the estate.

Friends doubt if the man's serious condition will allow him to enjoy Mrs. Lamberton's last gift to him.

Book-Leyde Company Remodel Mortuary

Firm Of Progressive Young Men Do Extensive Redecorating To Place Of Business

A soothing atmosphere of refined quietude greets one as they enter the newly remodeled and redecored mortuary of Book-Leyde at 337-339 Neshannock avenue.

The firm of Book-Leyde has a long and interesting history; it originated in 1895 as the White Undertaking company, which was founded by the late R. C. G. White. Mr. White was a man of high christian ideals, and this firm has benefited by his guidance. After the death of Mr. White the business was purchased July 1, 1928 by Earl Book and Joseph Leyde.

Both members of this firm, Earl E. Book and Joseph B. Leyde, are local young men, each having had several years of experience in mortuary work before going in business for themselves. They live in close touch with their business and give every family personal attention.

Not only does the firm take care of deaths, but have a particularly fine invalid car, which is ready for service at an instant's notice and the car is in personal charge of one of the proprietors at all times. This car is equipped with a resuscitator, which is the latest and most approved equipment for administering oxygen to those suffering from shock, asphyxiation or drowning.

As a further service to the ill and injured, this firm supplies wheel chairs, which can be rented for a short or long period of time.

The newly remodeled, redecored and refurbished mortuary will be open for public inspection Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

P.R.R. Division Set To Combat Winter Elements To Get Trains Through

Maintenance Program Of E. & A. Carefully Planned By Engineers

INTERRUPTION HERE NOT SO EXTENSIVE

So that deep snows, driving sleet and other damaging forces of the elements may not hamper traffic over the Erie and Ashtabula division of the Pennsylvania railroad this winter, Division Engineer C. W. Van Nort and his staff today were making extensive preparations for the next few months ahead.

The division engineer's department supervises the maintenance end of the division, seeing to it that the rails are kept open for trains at all times. Orders for the winter months are placed early each fall.

"We're prepared right now for a snow fight," said M. J. Paris, chief clerk to Mr. Van Nort. "It's our policy during the winter to be ready for any emergency arising from snow drifts, sleet storms or such as that. However, the E. and A. hasn't experienced a bad storm for more than 10 years."

Sleet Gives Trouble
"Sleet falling and then freezing on our wires is the greatest trouble we must contend with. The wires get heavy and come down, pulling the poles with them and interrupting our communication lines. Naturally this is the important part of a railroad, so traffic has to crawl along."

Batches of brooms, salt and snow melting pots have been provided, it was said. The melting pots are used to melt ice and snow when it becomes hardened in the switches. Other snow fighting equipment will also be ready for use at any time. It was explained that little trouble from the elements is encountered on the division here during the cold weather. The local snowfalls are not heavy enough to block the tracks. Extreme changes in temperature was given as the chief source of trouble, wires snapping because of this and interfering with the communication.

Other divisions of the Pennsylvania, especially those running through the mountains in this state suffer tremendously from winter trouble, according to Mr. Paris. Their winter program calls for considerably more planning than does that of the E. and A.

Gangster Held In Dry Agent's Death

Samuel Grossman, Arrested In Philadelphia As Finiello, Slaying Suspect

(International News Service)
PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—Samuel Grossman, alias George Green, described by officials as a member of the gangster firing squad which "bumped off" John Finiello, Philadelphia prohibition agent at the Rising Sun brewery in Elizabeth, N. J., ten days ago, was held in a city hall today charged with murder.

The accused man was arrested in a Chester, Pa., poolroom last night. Officials said he had been identified as one of the three men who shot Finiello.

Grossman and a companion, George Cronin, alias "Flynner", also of Philadelphia, were seized by a raiding squad of federal agents, Philadelphia and Chester police.

The suspect is one of the men who played such an important part in the racket grand jury investigation here in 1928. He was one of the men questioned regarding the murder of Hughey McLoon and also was held as a suspect in the killing of Charles H. Munn, a South Jersey milk dealer, who was shot to death here last March.

The arrest of Grossman is looked upon here as the most important move yet made in running down the men responsible for the slaying of the Philadelphia dry agent. As a result, the search for Nick Delmore, alleged Elizabeth millionaire "beer baron", was renewed today. His arrest is expected soon.

NOTES OF TROOP

"F"

103RD U. S. CAVALRY
OF NEW CASTLE

The six-year-old dark bay, pet of the troop, one of the best riders at the stables, will be seen on the stage of the Cathedral this evening when a home talent cast of 150 presents Carroll Kearns' "Odds."

It was suggested that someone name the horse. Army records at the armory fail to disclose a name. The bay was acquired several years ago following an encampment. The animal came from Philadelphia.

Capt. Bintrim said today preparations are being made for a troop banquet. Members and non-coms will be invited. Date is not fixed.

Troop F is the first organization in the city to answer the appeal of D. Roy Bradford for more signs to guide visiting airmen. The troop is ready to paint a sign on its barn on the West Side. All that is needed now is for someone to donate the paint.

All brick work at the stables is completed. This job brought commendation from Samuel B. Wolfe during the recent inspection. The major mentioned the brick flooring in his report to Adjutant General Beary.

Richard W. Miller, who was out of town for several weeks has reported for duty, Capt. Bintrim announces.

The list for the quarterly federal drill pay is being made compiled. The quarter ended Tuesday.

Future horse shows and public events will not be complete without the stunt group from this troop. It was announced the "rough riders" need a little more practice with the pyramid ride to be able to make an appearance at any show or field event.

Recent announcement in this column that Capt. James M. Shelton, cavalry instructor for upstate troops has available army extension courses to be conducted through him has brought quick response. Fourteen signified their intention of studying the course in animal care. They are: Sergeants Seyffert, Knight, Vonderau, Florida, Hunter, Stewart, Pollock, Corps, Vonderau, Henning, Palmer, Minter; Privates Miller, Robison, St. John.

Today is the final day to qualify in any of the arms drills this season. Fifty per cent of the men are reported qualified in all tests except rifle.

Well Known Stage Star Is Called

Jack Donahue, Star Of "Sons O' Guns" Show Fatally Stricken

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Jack Donahue, widely known musical comedy star, died at his home shortly after 6 a. m. here today.

Donahue was stricken in Cincinnati and was forced to leave his show, "Sons O' Guns." He came to New York Thursday.

Death was caused by heart failure. It was announced at Donahue's home in Central Park west by his secretary, Bert Stewart.

Mrs. Jack Donahue was at the actor's bedside when he died. Donahue remained conscious until a few hours before he passed away.

Stewart said Donahue was deathly ill from the moment he left the stage in Cincinnati and indicated that Donahue had waited too long before he asked to be allowed to leave "Sons O' Guns."

An actor and trouper to the last Donahue tried to remain cheerful to the end and chatted along with his wife.

"His heart simply gave out on him," Stewart said. "He had every medical attention and several doctors were in attendance but only one was here when he died."

STATE BUDGET BEING PLANNED

Fiscal Officers At Capitol Hill Are Preparing Budgets For 1931-33

(Special To The News)
HARRISBURG, Oct. 1.—Fiscal officers in the various departments on Capitol Hill are busy these days preparing their budget requests for the 1931-33 biennium. Whether this work will be a total loss remains to be seen for the incoming governor is not bound by the budget recommendations of an outgoing executive.

Requests for increased appropriations are more difficult to obtain under a budget system. So thorough a check is kept on expenditures which are allocated on a monthly basis that any requests for higher grants are closely scrutinized.

Before the days of budget control deficiency appropriations most always were necessary. Now it is different. Each item of expense in the various departments has a certain sum allocated for the fiscal year. If the expenditures for that item are not up to expectations the remainder unspent will revert to the general fund unless the department budget is revised. To revise a department budget is no easy matter and the budget secretary must give his sanction to the move before it becomes effective.

The code provides that the gubernatorial budget must be submitted by the end of January. Any incoming governor is free, however, to have his own budget requests prepared and submitted in place of the one sent in by his predecessor.

Eight years ago former Governor Pinchot inaugurated the budget system. For months in advance of the legislative session he had experts going over estimates of revenue and expense. Since that time the State has operated financially speaking "in the blue."

A substantial balance in the general fund is anticipated at the close of the present biennium. That will permit a continuation of building operations at State institutions despite any possible decreases in revenues because of decreased business activities.

Dogs Stay Home During Warfare By Police?

When Chief of Police C. C. Horner recently announced that his police-men would wage deadly warfare against any stray dogs—any kind of dogs, with or without pedigree, yelping mongrels or placid poodles—he certainly started some talking.

These developments followed: Constable Michael Mescall of Union township quickly followed with an ultimatum to all dog owners in his district, the same ultimatum to go into effect today.

A reporter was sent to canvass the city, find unlicensed animals, sought in the unrelenting battle being waged against members of the canine tribes by officers of the law.

Chief Horner had said Friday that the order to shoot loose dogs, licensed or unlicensed, was in effect, but if the scribe believed representatives of the hunted animal law breakers would consent to tell their side of the war, the war was to receive a setback. The canine hordes were not at home and the interviewer's hopes waned. A two-hour tramp convinced him that they did not care to present their version of the shooting order.

It has been reported by reliable authority that the South Side was infested with loose dogs. Therefore that district appeared a good hunting ground. But before going there a report that a portion of the First Ward abounded in stray dogs prompted an earlier investigation. South Beaver and its intersecting streets were combed for dogs Tuesday afternoon. Maybe it was the time of the day—or perhaps dogs decided it was a time to be indoors or under the porch steps—but the early search proved fruitless. No hungry dogs were encountered. That district took on the aspects of peace.

A dirty yelping poodle was met on South Jefferson street, near Central Fire Station, after the Beaver street search had been ended at West Lawrence street. The dog, the first found since the start of the search carried a worn collar without a license.

The trip to Long avenue failed to disclose at least one dog, that belongs to the category of wanted animals although one fox-terrier was noticed in a doorway in the 1000 block on Jefferson.

In the heart of the South Side the search began in earnest. Pooches, doorways, backyards and other dog havens were scrutinized. Not a dog in sight. East Long avenue to Pollock avenue and still no dogs. Pennsylvania, Hamilton and Pollock avenues offered no solution to the dog mystery. No wild dogs were in sight. Not even peaceful dogs. In one of the winding alleys of the neighborhood a cat leaped across the track of the investigator. The return via South Mill street was made at dark, so that even if an unlicensed dog were present he could have passed unseen. It looked like the dogs were tied up yesterday.

Season On Ducks And Woodcock Is Under Way Today

Rabbits, Squirrels, And Birds
Cannot Be Hunted Until November

Today is the first day of the hunting season in Pennsylvania, practically speaking, the open season on woodcock and all birds known as wild water-fowl, coming in today.

The season on woodcock ends November 30, while that on wild duck and other waterfowl ends January 15.

The game limit on woodcock is six in one day and 20 in one season, although there is a conflict with the Federal Law in this respect. The Federal regulations provide a bag limit of four woodcock in one day.

The limit on wild ducks of the combined kinds is 15 in one day and 60 in one season, on wild geese, five in one day and 30 in one season.

The season on wild turkey, pheasant, quail, squirrel, rabbit and raccoon opens November 1st, when the hunting season may be really said to be under way.

Bear season opens November 10 while deer season does not start until December 1.

GUESSWORK ELIMINATED IN SELECTION OF COR- RECT FACE POWDER

"Find Out Skin Type and Rest Is Easy," Say Beauty Experts

American women have been quick to realize the many advantages resulting from the selection of the proper face powder. Now that it is a well-known fact that all skin is either oily, dry or normal, women find it easy to choose a face powder that best agrees with their own skin.

That's why more and more women are constantly changing to one of Plough's Three Face Powders. When you choose yours you will be overjoyed at the sparkling, new beauty it brings over its smooth, even texture...its lingering freshness...its long clinging freshness...and you only have to try it once to see the difference between one of these specially-prepared powders and ordinary face powders.

FOR OILY SKIN—Choose heavy texture, Plough's "Incense of Flowers" Face Powder in the oval box—75c.

FOR DRY SKIN—Choose light texture, Plough's "Favorite Fragrance" Face Powder in the square box—50c.

FOR NORMAL SKIN—Choose medium texture, Plough's "Equisette" Face Powder in the round box—50c.

Each Plough powder comes in white, flesh, pink, brunette and sun-tan tints and is sensibly priced wherever beauty creations are sold.

Extravagance is out of date! Nowadays "It's smart to be thrifty." As more and more women are realizing this, they are choosing one of Plough's 3 Face Powders. Not only because these modern powders are bringing greater beauty to their skins; but because of the economy afforded by finest quality at a sensible price.

Well Known Former Restaurant
Man Is 91 Years Old Tues-

Many folks of this city will be interested to know that S. S. Sloan, a well known former restaurant man of New Castle, and the father of Mrs. W. H. Glenn of Richfield avenue, was 91 years old Tuesday, September 30.

Mr. Sloan was born in Titusville in 1839 and traveled in every state during his youthful days. He started in the restaurant business here, having his first building, which was one of considerable size, on the corner of Croton avenue and East Washington street where the New Castle Dry Goods company now stands. He is the last of a family of 14 children and is the father of three children and has six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren, all sons. Mr. Sloan and his wife, Mrs. Della N. Sloan, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary a few years previous to her death. He has kept remarkably well, and is the possessor of a very keen memory, his second sight and is enjoying good health.

He observed the day quietly at his residence on the New Wilmington road, receiving visitors, a number of messages of congratulations and gifts in memory of the day.

Death Seems Near, For Heir To $10,000

FRANKLIN, Oct. 1.—Death may step between John W. Raymond, 60 year old Montana rancher, and the $10,000 to which he has found himself heir. Raymond lies in a comatose condition in Franklin Hospital, following a blood transfusion.

Since he arrived here Friday he has been in a state of collapse, unable to talk and thoroughly exhausted. Nurses say his condition is serious and doctors are skeptical about the outcome. Gone from here 30 years, the modern Rip Van Winkle has not yet been able to tell the story of his life in the far west. Judge Parker has cleared the way for him to obtain the $10,000 bequest of Mrs. Sarah Lambertson if he recovers.

Salvation Army Does Religious Work Among Poor

National Scheme Of Social Service Inaugurated By Commander Booth

HAVE BEEN WORKING
HERE FOR 48 YEARS

Many Have Risen To Places
Of Prominence As Result
Of Salvation Army

"A Man May Be Down, But He's
Never Out" is to recall a familiar slogan adopted by The Salvation Army after the great service done in the World War. And "Suppose Nobody Cared" as was the case eighty years ago, and is much the same today, to know just what became of the poor.

William Booth, the founder and first General of The Salvation Army, felt a divine call to "Do Something" and being a minister of the gospel, he took for his church edifice the "Street Corner" and for his pulpit a "Soapbox" and his congregation, the neglected and debauched poor much in the same way as we see The Salvation Army people today.

The Salvation Army is a religious organization primarily. Its social service and relief program was added many years after when General Booth found himself facing a problem of how to care for the homeless poor, unemployed poor, the "fallen girl" He outlined a national and international scheme of social service. The scheme was proven to be practical and his famous book "The Darkest of England and the way out" received such an ovation of approval from many government officials in the world that The Salvation Army officers were called upon to start the work everywhere. So The Salvation Army became pioneers in social service and relief work applied to the religious faith. Fifty years ago operations began in New York City officially by request of several families who as immigrants had settled in Philadelphia.

The religious zeal and peculiar uniforms and the name of this new movement attracted widespread attention.

Two years later the work was opened in New Castle on the second floor of the Cripps' Hardware on the Diamond. Captain Nell's name is still well preserved in the minds of the older citizens. The late Commissioner Adam Gifford of San Francisco is known to many here as Miss Mary Adams, a daughter of Mrs. Adams on Spruce street, who at that time became an officer and rose with her husband in this organization to one of the highest positions, having charge of the entire Western states.

There are other local people who have entered the Army work from here. The Salvation Army has seen many citizens enter the roles as members of the various churches in the community both past and present. Many now occupying pulpits as ministers in prominent churches all over the country began with The Salvation Army. Among them are some who recently occupied the pulpit of some of our city churches.

Fire Prevention Week To Include City Inspection

Business Properties Will Be Inspected And Public Asked To Co-operate

Fire Chief C. H. Lynn announced today that an inspection of business properties would be made during Fire Prevention Week, October 5-11, and a report submitted for official record. Firemen and inspectors will ask the public to cooperate in making their premises safe against fire by cleaning out all rubbish and unnecessary accumulations of inflammable materials.

The yearly fire loss, reaching almost a half-billion dollars, affected the economic condition of the country and is shared by everyone. In addition, over 10,000 people lose their lives and many more thousands are injured.

According to official statistics, 80 per cent of all fires have been found to be the result of carelessness, or poor building construction.

Proclamations issued by President Hoover and by many state, county and city officials call upon every citizen to lend their support to the observance of national Fire Prevention Week. Chief Lynn made the following suggestions:

Clear out all rubbish from premises and clean chimneys, flues and pipes of accumulations of soot.

Have an experienced electrician do your wiring and make electric repairs. Such professional service is important, and safest and cheapest in the end.

Do not overload the electric circuit because you want more outlets for devices.

Carefully dispose of matches and tobacco. They cause the largest number of fires.

Gasoline and other volatile liquids are dangerous cleaning fluids. Use only safe compounds.

Never use a lighted flame to locate a gas leak. Soapbuds applied to suspected places will reveal the leaks by bubbles.

Use metal cans for ashes. Shield walls and ceilings from stoves, heaters and pipes.

Open fireplaces should be screened. Turn off gas lights when not in use.

For repairing, use fire-resistive materials.

Learn where the nearest fire alarm box is located and what to do in case of fire.

Take a list of these and all other fire possibilities, then determine to make your property, and the lives of those who share it with you, safe against danger.

Scientists Head For Tin Can Island To Study Eclipse

By WALLACE K. RAWLES
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—The third and final contingent of astronomers bound for Niuaou or "Tin Can" island to witness a total solar eclipse on October 21 today was on board the Matson liner Ventura bound for the Tonga island group in the South Seas where "Tin Can" island is located. The party sailed from here Sept. 11.

Included in the party of scientists were Prof. and Mrs. Joseph J. Johnson of the Perkins observatory at Ohio Wesleyan university.

Prof. and Mrs. Johnson carried luggage bulging with telescopes and beads to be used in procuring the goodwill of Tin Can island natives.

The United States naval observatory is sponsoring the expedition in cooperation with scientists from the University of Virginia, Ohio Wesleyan and Swarthmore university. The first part of the expedition headed by Commander C. H. J. Kipper, U. S. navy, sailed from here several weeks ago to supervise setting up the heavy astronomical equipment which includes one of the largest cameras in existence.

The scientists selected Tin Can island because it likely will be the only available land from which the eclipse can be glimpsed in totality.

The observers, who have labored long to perfect plans and equipment to insure success of the expedition's objective, hope to check the accuracy of the Einstein theory of relativity through the phenomenon of the sun's eclipse.

Each astronomer in the large party will have a specific task.

Prof. Johnson, for instance, will be "corona man". He will record photometric measurements of the corona's total light. The eclipse will continue for only 93 seconds, hence the necessity for fast recordings.

Niuaou is a primitive island deriving its nickname "Tin Can" from the fact that ships cannot reach its shores and mail is thrown overboard in sealed tin cans which are picked up by native swimmers and taken ashore.

Natives, interested in the activity, will be helpful in setting up the heavy equipment, and for this reason the party has taken along its heavy consignment of "cash" which includes candy, pipes, tobacco, beads and other trinkets.

As far as could be learned here when the Ventura sailed the equipment of the scientists included no miniature golf courses, and the natives, not realizing the deprivation, naturally will be satisfied with beads and tops.

BEGGERS NET HUGE PROFIT IN ENGLAND

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 1.—Professional begging in England is a most profitable business. The man into whose hat is dropped a few pennies usually spends his holiday in Paris or the south of France.

This amazing revelation is made in the confessional letter of a professional beggar, Gilbert Hanson, who committed suicide because he was tired of living a double-life of deceit and rascality.

"I am a professional beggar and have been for ten years," his letter began. "From what I have learned and from my own experience I am fully convinced that begging as a profession cannot be beaten."

Hanson lived in fairly good circumstances here with his bride of three months from whom he concealed his real identity. He followed his "profession" in Manchester, the large industrial town, to which he went three times a week. Referring to his "co-workers," he wrote:

"Most of us congregate at a public-house (saloon) which we call the Beggar's Arms. One big brute, with a few days' growth of beard and safety pins keeping his clothes together, wears a card stating that he is a broken Mons hero. He can change a pound ($5) any day in the week, and would not work if a job was offered to him.

"There is a one-armed man who boasts that fifty shillings ($12) is a poor wage begging from seven to ten in a public-house on a Saturday night."

"Then there is the stout man with his concertina and black dog who wears glasses. He earns sixteen shillings ($4) in half an hour any day, and pays half a crown (.50) to watch for the copper coming back. Also there is the blind man who can collect a pound any night from the theatre queue."

"One of the capitalists of the 'profession' is the man known as 'No Legs.' He owns property and can afford to go to Paris every year for his holidays."

"I hope," Hanson adds in conclusion, "that the public will cease to encourage beggars because the least successful beggar is better off than the average working man."

LABOR LEADER THINKS PUBLIC IS A FICKLE LOT

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

LONDON, Oct. 1.—Philip Snowden, labor's chancellor of the exchequer, is disillusioned with public life. He believes that the public are a fickle lot.

On receiving the freedom of the city of Leeds he surprised his audience by talking of the disappointments of political life and the fickleness of popular favor. This despite the fact that only a short time ago he was acclaimed "hero of the Hague" when he forced France and Germany to accept the Young plan as a complete and final settlement of all financial questions issuing from the peace treaties and obtained more interest for Britain than had been expected. Now he says:

"The public is a fickle master. One day it puts a laurel wreath round your head, and the next it presses a crown of thorns upon your brow."

"True, there are plums in public life, but there are also disillusionments and there are disappointments. I have seen men full of enthusiasm and zeal come into public life burning with a desire to see things done, but they have found how great are the difficulties, and it requires strong courage and great faith to keep up your enthusiasm and determination in face of frequent disappointment."

"It is a great satisfaction, however, to think that although you have failed for you may have been able to make the world a little better for your having lived in it."

Information From Article

Another distant reader of the New Castle News has communicated with the Lawrence County Chapter, American Red Cross, relative to the payment of death claims by the U. S. government after she had read of the fact in The News.

From time to time, the fact that the government pays an allowance of $107, in cases of deceased veterans, to assist with the burial expenses, has been stressed and several readers from a distance have made inquiry through the local chapter and have been assisted in filing claims, after reading the articles in The News.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 1.—Application of Lathew Casaric, of Punxsutawney, for permission to enlarge his bus facilities for school children of Ringold and Baler was being considered by the Public Service Commission today.

Cesaric, operator of the Punxsutawney Taxi Company, requested two certificates of operation. He told the commissioners he desired to transport children from Ringold and Baler to Punxsutawney where they are attending schools.

IT WAS AUTUMN (1773) WHEN BOONE AND HIS FRIENDS, BOUND FOR KENTUCKY, REACHED POWELL'S VALLEY, WHERE THEY WERE TO BE JOINED BY WILLIAM RUSSELL, A PROSPEROUS SETTLER LIVING ON THE CLINCH RIVER.

BOONE'S OLDEST SON, A LAD OF SIXTEEN, WAS DISPATCHED TO NOTIFY RUSSELL OF BOONE'S ARRIVAL AT THE MEETING PLACE. HAVING DELIVERED HIS MESSAGE, YOUNG BOONE STARTED BACK TO POWELL'S VALLEY.

WITH THE BOY WENT RUSSELL'S SON AND A FEW WHITE FARMHANDS AND NEGRO SLAVES LEADING PACK-HORSES LADEN WITH SUPPLIES. AT SUNDOWN THE PARTY MISSED ITS WAY, AND IT WAS DECIDED TO CAMP FOR THE NIGHT AND PUSH ON TO POWELL'S VALLEY IN THE MORNING.

Philadelphia Fans Jam Ball Park For Annual Fall Classic

Connie Mack Refuses To Name Starting Pitcher, It May Be Lefty Grove

Gabby Street Thinks That Burleigh Grimes Can Set Back Macks In First Tilt

By JAMES L. KILGALLIN
International News Service Writer

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—Staid, historic Philadelphia cast aside its traditional dignity today and paid homage to King Baseball. For at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, in the presence of President Hoover and a capacity crowd of 33,000 spectators, many of them frantic with excitement, the Philadelphia Athletics and the St. Louis Cardinals will clash at Shibe Park in the opening game of the 1930 World Series—a set of combats that promise thrills and drama galore.

The president is scheduled to toss out the first ball. Betting is even money that it will be a wild pitch.

Weather is cool.

Cool, fair weather, suitable for top-coats, will prevail according to the weather man.

A deep mystery, based on psychology, has been thrown by Manager Connie Mack of the A's over the question of who will be his starting pitcher. The experts believe he will be "Lefty" Grove, the fireball king, but they suspect Mack may "cross" them as he did a year ago and spring a "dark horse."

On the other hand, Manager Gabby Street of the Red Birds is making no secret of his opening pitcher. He will be Burleigh Grimes, a great "money player" who hurls a wicked spit ball.

Frisch to Play.

Eleventh hour reports that Frankie Frisch, star second baseman of the Cardinals, would be unable to play in the series because of an attack of lumbago were denied to International News Service today by both Manager Street and Frisch himself.

"I have a backache but no backache is going to keep me out of this world series," said Frisch, with characteristic grit. "I'll be in there this afternoon if they have to carry me out on the diamond."

Frisch caught a severe cold in his back in a recent game in St. Louis. He told the writer when he stepped off the train the other day that his back was giving him trouble but he felt certain it would not prevent him from playing in the series. When the Cardinals worked out yesterday afternoon at Shibe Park, Frisch was not present and this gave rise to the rumor that he was "out" for the series. Last night he underwent hot lamp and massage treatments by Dr.

Hyland, the Cardinals' club physician.

The medical verdict was that while Frisch is not in the best of condition he will be able to play.

Betting is Heavy.

Heavy betting on the outcome of the series was reported today and the odds, which had been 13 to 10 with the Athletics the favorites, were hammered down to even money. Betting was six to five on the A's providing "Lefty" Grove pitches, and even money if Mack nominated any other pitcher.

Mayor Victor J. Miller of St. Louis laid a bet of $2,000 against $3,000 on the Cardinals and tried to get down more money to even money. But he was offered no better than even money this morning.

For three days holders of applications for world series tickets have been storming the box offices at Shibe Park. Every seat in the place has been sold for today's game.

Tickets are Scarce.

Speculators have experienced considerable difficulty in obtaining pastebards. The local police and federal officials have cooperated splendidly with the ball club officials and baseball commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis today expressed himself as being "highly pleased" with the manner in which the tickets were doled out to the public.

Every incoming train this morning and last night brought its quota of world series visitors. Hundreds of others came by automobile. The hotel lobbies were thronged this morning with sports luminaries from all parts of the country, including many famous ballplayers and managers.

"Nick" Altrock and Al Schacht, the baseball clown, who will cavort on the field before the game for the edification and amusement of the spectators, are on hand, wisecracking everybody in sight.

So are such celebrities as John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Giants; Walter Johnson, manager of the Washington Senators; Ty Cobb, one of the greatest players of all time; Babe Ruth; Dan Howley, manager of the Cincinnati Reds; Lena Blackburn, former manager of the Chicago White Sox; This Speaker, old outfield star; Bill Killefer, manager of the St. Louis Browns; John Heydler, president of the National League and Ernest S. Barnard, president of the American League.

All the baseball men were united in the opinion that this is going to be a close, hardfought series. They seemed evenly divided as to the club that would win. They said the result would hinge largely on which team gets the "breaks" and which team would win the opening game.

Well, anyway, the hairpin manufacturing business seems to be reviving somewhat.—The Albany Evening News.

TOO MUCH FOR ONE PERSON

'Twas Difficult To Match Phil Tobias

His "Sock" Was Feared; Peters And He Staged Thrilling Bout; Perotta Vs. Firpo, Burns Vs. Louisville Slugger, Staged Exciting Battles; Herrera, Goodman, Datto, Davies, Wolgast Among Those To Shoot Punches Here.

It is probable that another fight equal to that between Ernie Peters and Phil Tobias may be staged here, there or elsewhere, but it will be no jumbling of fact to state that it was one of the greatest battles ever staged here or elsewhere.

Phil, the stormy character of the Tin Can colony, had been shunted around by the managers until he was almost passed up by the promoters, so when he was offered a chance with Peters here he seized the opportunity.

The Redskin was s'posed to be the pumpkins of Chicago flyweights and he came into the ring prepared to fight, and fight he did. He was up and down like a cork, and it recollection serves correctly, Tobias was also turbed.

Not so long after the bout here the Madison Square Garden flyweight eliminations were held and Tobias was not among those present. He was left out in the cold and Midget Wolgast finally came through as the champion.

Phil Carried Dynamite.

To get down to the truth of the Tobias situation, there no doubt are better boxers than Philip, but he decided few better punchers. It was a difficult thing to match him, owing to his wallop.

Local fans have always regretted that Frenchy Belanger and he did not meet here. Had they tangled the fans would no doubt have been treated to a fight the like of which they had the pleasure of seeing when Peters met Tobias.

Two days before Phil was to meet Ernie he fractured a hand, which not only caused a postponement here, but prevented him fighting in Madison Square Garden and drawing the sum of $2,500 for his end.

Some of the "wiseacres" or the "know-it-alls" of the game (and every city has 'em) said Belanger would not be here, but the French-Canadian was on the job here the day before the bout. He had to return to Toronto without boxing.

The Henry Firpo-Johnny Burns bout was another classic, as was the Davies-Wolgast encounter. Plenty of cities would have liked to have secured the Al Friedman-Em' Rocco tilt, but this also was a feature for the Jolly Bowl.

Burns Displayed Class.

Burns rated as one of the best middleweights of the Far West, he thrilled with Rene DeVo's in Chicago and battled Firpo in a sensational go here. No two flyweights could have provided more class than Davies and Wolgast.

Rocco was the puncher and Friedman the jabsmith in their encounter. Rocco fractured his whaling hand in one of the opening stanzas and was crippled, but he was strong and dangerous, as his knockdown of Al in the 10th proved.

One of the most exciting bouts staged at the Bowl was the Perotta-Firpo tilt. George lost after being up and down nine times. His unquenchable spirit seldom was witnessed and he was still trying when the tilt ended.

Speaking of the exciting preliminaries, very few of which were not exciting, don't forget the Fritz Otto-Johnny Clemens bout. Both were beginners, but they furnished a brawl that would have gone over big in the days of old.

Fritz, direct from the Rhineland, scored knockdown after knockdown, but it is true half of them came from wrestling tactics. Finally blood oozed from his nose and Clemens took the upper hand.

Remember Fritz Otto?

One would go down, to be followed by the other. The fans were in a frenzy. Only the "hard-boiled" fans and officials sat still, content with seeing either man win. Otto tired, stalled and was disqualified.

Tony Herrera, the Mexican; Joey Goodman of Virginia, Johnny Datto of the Philippines, Johnny McCoy of Buffalo, were a few of the sensationists, while Frisco Grande and Luis Carpentero battled like two pit terriers.

Union High Hopes For Victory Over Scienceville High

Coach David Morgan Boyd, is giving the Union High gridders a lot of special attention this week, in preparation for the game Friday afternoon with Scienceville High at Scienceville, Ohio.

The Scienceville team last week only suffered a 14 to 0 defeat at the hands of the Raven High, and they are reported to be strong. Union hopes to atone for that setback suffered at Ellwood City, and will battle to bring back a victory from the Ohio town.

Gridiron Gossip

Coach "Dike" Beede is giving the Westminster Titans a lot of attention this week. Saturday afternoon the United Presbyterians will go down to Washington for a football struggle with the Presidents. W & J got away to an impressive start by doubling the tar out of Bethany 74 to 0. The Westminster boys are confident that the Amos coached machine cannot turn the same trick on them.

Three of the stars of the Titan team are on the shelves with injuries this week, incurred in the Edinboro game. Walter Kozicki of Yagerstown, Pa., a tackle, was badly used up by the Teachers and may not get in the W & J fuss. Elmer Meider, Pittsburgh boy turned his ankle when he stepped in a hole on the sidelines last Saturday and will need a lot of attention this week to be in shape for the battle. James Perrin, Avella, Pa., fullback, suffered a twisted back in the opening tilt, and Trainer Jack Holmes is busy. The Titans chances against the Presidents are none to roscate with-out these three boys.

Coach Jack Sutherland is pleased with the way his 1930 Panthers tore up the turf on the stadium last week against Waynesburg, but with West Virginia on the program for this week end, the Pitties are begin given a lot of hard work, such as scrimmage and tackling, blocking and breaking up passes. The Pitt team has long been weak on the matter of breaking up forward passes, and their opponents know that. Paul Reider was slightly hurt in the Waynesburg game, but will be back in the game Saturday if it is reported, if Sutherland so desires. Cuba played a very good game against Waynesburg as a tackle.

Carnegie Tech is not going to have anything soft this week end. Thiel College with a lot of ambitious boys will be down in Pittsburgh to see what can be done about taking this Tech team by the horns. The Carnegie footballers made mincemeat out of Buffalo last week 75 to 2. The Thiel team wouldn't make good mincemeat. The Lutherans played a great brand of football last Friday night to hold Temple 13 to 0. The Tech boys who learned the score immediately set to work to try and find some means of winning a victory over what appears to be a fine Thiel team.

Geneva College gets a "breather" this week, meeting Canisius Friday night at the Reeves Field. The Geneva boys were rather badly used up in the Bucknell game, and the injured list looks like a small sized hospital, but nevertheless Coach Harper is going to have a strong team on the field against Canisius. Ransom and Davis are the most seriously injured of the Covenantor stars. Cliff Aultman, the demon pass grabber is expected to be back at his wing post this week, which will add strength to the Geneva line.

Allegheny College doesn't particularly have a pleasant romp awaiting their football boys Saturday afternoon. Edinboro Teachers College will be the lid-lifters at Allegheny and if the Harrison coached crew looks anything like they did at New Wilmington, then the Alleghenies are going to have to be good and hungry to take a victory. In Arrowsmith, Duff, Roney, Anderson, and Jolly, the Teachers have some formidable linemen and backs, and it will behoove the Alleghenians to be on their toes.

Former Star Has Wonderful Team

Alec Fox Is Now Mentor Of The Martins Ferry Team And Has Fine Squad

Alec Fox, who will be remembered as one of the outstanding football stars of teams of New Castle High School in recent years, is himself mentor of one of the best high school football teams in this section of the country this year.

He is coach at Martins Ferry, O., and has one of the outstanding teams of the entire district. In both starts this year, his team has won by nice margins, defeating Mingo High school 26-0 and Linsly Academy 19-0 on last Saturday. The team looks good for being one of the championship contenders in this section of the country.

Fox, it will be remembered, in addition to having been a star tackle on the New Castle High School team, was star guard on the University of Pittsburgh team attending that institution and was selected for position on the mythical Axy American eleven while a member of the 1st squad.

His many friends and admirers here will be pleased to learn of the success that he is meeting with as a coach.

Del Vecchio Wins Springs Tourney

Greensburg Gopher Ascends To Throne Vacated By Light-horse Harry Cooper

(International News Service)
CAMBRIDGE SPRINGS, Pa., Oct. 1.—Perry Del Vecchio, diminutive golf pro of Greensburg country club, today held the vacated crown of Lighthouse Harry Cooper, champion of the northwestern Pennsylvania professional golf association.

Despite a cold and dismal rail which sprinkled down on the players during the final holes of the championship play yesterday, the new golf titlist turned in cards of 72 and 73 which with his Monday's total gave him an aggregate of 237 for the 72 holes, three strokes better than Al Alcroft of Youngstown who finished second.

The new champion set the pace at the outset and except for the first 18 holes of the tournament on Monday he led the field during the entire meet.

Behind Alcroft came Jack Gordon of Buffalo, Vincent Eldred of Pittsburgh and Ted Luther, West Penn champ from Corry, who tied for third place honors with cards of 297. Fred Baroni was next with a 238 and Frank Presby, also of Youngstown, followed with a 229.

Cards of 253 even were turned in by Earl Rowley of Buffalo and Earl Ray of Pittsburgh.

Benny Ciccone Helps Captain Duke Freshies In Bellefonte Battle

Former New Castle High Star Center Plays Great Game As Freshies Win

Glenn "Goat" Thomas Appointed To Help Dally Coach Duquesne Prep School Team

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 1.—Freshman Coach Aldo "Bull" Donnell and Line Coach Louis "Doc" Skender put the first Duquesne university freshman football squad through a stiff workout Tuesday afternoon, after a layoff Monday. They were greatly pleased with the victory of the freshmen over the strong Bellefonte academy national prep school champions Saturday at Bellefonte.

New Captaincy System.

Coach Donnell introduced a new captaincy style in collegiate ranks by appointing a new captain for each half. In the first half of the Bellefonte-Bronx game, Rumora of Denora was appointed first captain. At the first half intermission Benny "Beany" Ciccone of New Castle was given the honor to lead the team through to victory. He may again captain the team against Potomac State.

Although every man used by Coach Donnell in the fracas displayed stellar qualities, Benny Ciccone, former Ne-Ca-Hi captain and star, was an outstanding figure in the victory. "Red," as Ciccone is known to his New Castle friends, displayed spirit and willingness that few former New Castle stars have done before for the Bluff school.

Things Looked Dark.

At the time "Beany" Ciccone entered Duquesne university things looked rather dark from his point of view, but as the gigantic freshman squad (Continued on Next Page)

Hoover Will See Wet-Dry Battle In Philadelphia

Grimes Will Use Spitter Against Some Good Prohibitionist Selected
By Mack

McCarthy MAY MANAGE YANKS

By BILL CORUM
International News Service Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—President Hoover can't seem to escape the wet and dry issue. He will see the first game of the world's series here this afternoon in which Burleigh Grimes, a moist ball pitcher, will oppose one of Connie Mack's prohibitionists. Mr. Mack said last night that he hadn't yet decided who would conduct the noble experiment.

Connie is "that is known as a psychologist in baseball that means a man who keeps his mouth shut."

In spite of the hard times, Tom Shibe has bought a new phonograph record for the games at Shibe Park. Tom, as you no doubt recall from last year, is the man who employs a phonograph and loud speaker in lieu of the customary six-piece band which performs on state occasions in other major league parks. I am told Tom had a hard time picking out the tune he wanted on his new record, but finally hit on "Sing Something Simple."

Mr. Shibe's favorite music is the clicking of the turntable.

Yanks Want McCarthy
You can put a ring around Joe McCarthy's name as the next manager of the Yankees. McCarthy has promised to talk with his friend Bob Quinn in Boston before signing, but will tell Quinn he thinks New York offers a broader field for his talents. Joe is said to relish the prospect of leaving William Wrigley's Cubs for the Yankees because it will enable him to give up chewing gum for near-beer and horseshoe plug. An old Buffalo Fourth Ward boy by birth and training, McCarthy had a terrible time learning to chew gum in the first place.

Just met Frankie Frisch in the lobby of the Cardinals' hotel. "Will you play?" I asked. "Pinch or poker?" He cracked back. That's the way the red wings feel about the series. There's a lot of kidding going on among them.

Frisch has been suffering from an attack of lumbago and there was some question about his starting this afternoon. But it will take more than lumbago to keep him out of there. And, unless I miss my guess, the Athletics will wish he had more than lumbago before they see the last of him.

Rochester Needs One More Victory

(International News Service)
LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 1.—But one more victory was needed today for the Rochester Internationals to win the little world series from Louisville.

One smart play in which a third strike was caught on the first bounce by the catcher turned yesterday's game into an 8 to 6 victory for the Easterners, giving them a 4 to 2 advantage over the Cardinals.

Louisville was leading 5 to 4 in the eighth and Penner had struck out Collins and Wilson. Catcher Barnes caught the last strike on the first bounce and, failing to throw to first, Wilson raced to first and then to second. Florence then singled, putting the Internationals one ahead.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS LAND

Should Connie Mack start Lefty Grove today Burleigh Grimes of the Cardinals will have received his wish. For some days past Grimes has been quoted as saying he would appreciate having the A's star hurler oppose him. Gabby Street has stated he will start Grimes. Connie Mack will not announce his pitching choice until five minutes before the first of the world series starts today at Philadelphia.

Captain Frankie Frisch, second baseman may not be in the lineup for the St. Louis Cardinals when the game starts. Frisch has lumbago and has been in bed. He has subjected himself to heroic treatment in order that he can take his place at second base but last night some of his teammates admitted he may not be in his position when the game is called. Frisch however, insists he will be on the job.

The rival managers have issued their pre-game statements. Connie Mack is quoted as saying "It looks like a very good and I hope interesting series. We all like a good contest. My boys are all in good condition. We expect to win, but if we don't there will be no alibis."

Gabby Street of the Cardinals is reported as saying "This is just another series for us, no tougher, if as tough, as those we went through to win the pennant. Our pitchers are all in great shape, starting with Grimes and the whole team is confident. So am I."

The betting in Philadelphia last night was "A's 13 to 10 to win." "Little" betting is reported.

Allen Bixby of Pasadena, will probably be named by Governor Young to conduct an investigation of boxing in California. A grand jury at Sacramento recently recommended that Charles Trauma of San Francisco be removed from the state athletic commission.

Mrs. Sidney Martin, Philadelphia, furnished an upset when she defeated Miss Frances Williams, Allentown, 3 and 2 at the Hagerstown Valley Country club. Philadelphia for the Berthelwyn cup.

The Boston Red Sox have drafted Lefty Brierheart, Minneapolis A. who won 18 and lost 16. He is a teammate of Paul McLoughlin, this city, who won 14 and lost 12 for Minneapolis.

Cliff Woodbury, one of the best known veterans of the speed game, who retired last year after a near fatal spin on the Altoona track during the June classic, has been named as Billy Arnold's pit manager for the match race with Deacon Litz, October 11.

Tony Herrera and Joe Glick will meet in a 10-round bout Monday night at Pittsburgh's Motor Square garden. Frankie Kid Anselm and Marty Gold, who met at Franklin, will do their stuff again Friday night at Moose temple, Pittsburgh. Anselm really won at Franklin but it was called a draw.

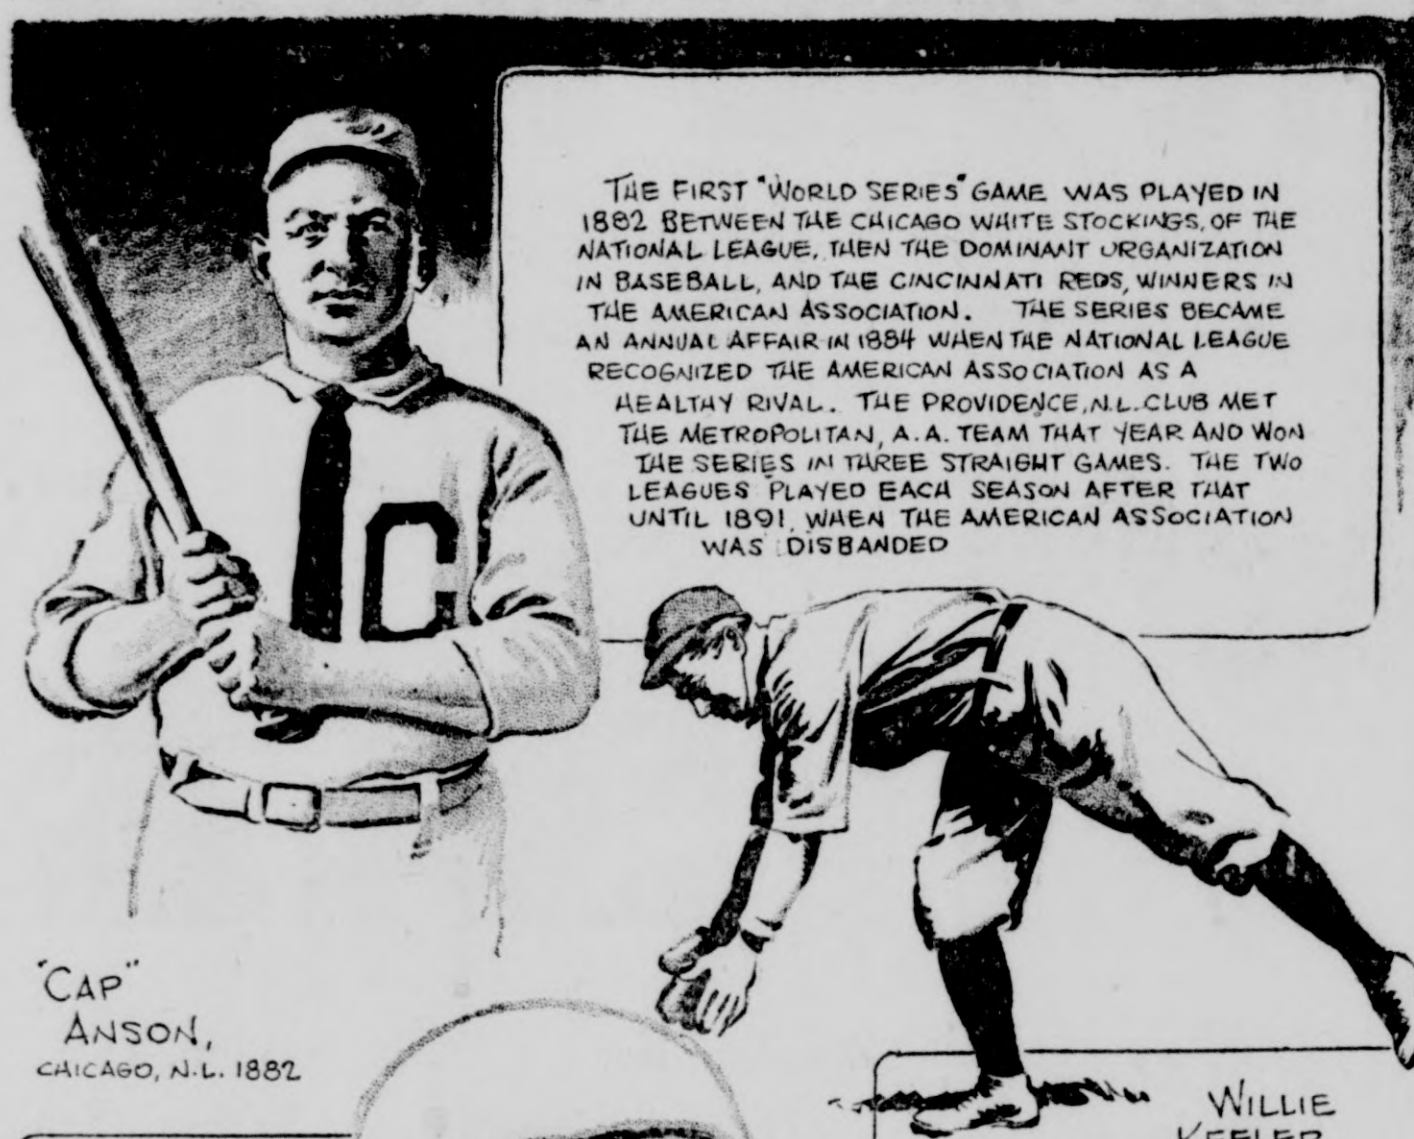

Cold weather and a dismal rain did not prevent Perry Del Vecchio, Greensburg Country club pro, from winning the Professional Golfers' association championship of northwestern Pennsylvania at Cambridge Springs. He had an aggregate of 287 for the 72 holes.

Westminster Prepares For Wash-Jeff Battle

(Special To The News)
NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Oct. 1.—With three regulars on the injured list, Coach "Dike" Beebe's Westminster College football team got down to work at the start of the week in preparation for the gigantic task of holding Bill Amos' powerful Washington and Jefferson team in the game Saturday at Little Washington.

Beebe used Hamas at fullback, Michaels at quarter, Haldy at right half, and Shaffer at left half in the Monday and Tuesday drills. On the line, the Tital mentor had Cebula and Tweedy at end, Uram and Fuller at guard, Armour and Rehuf at tackle, and Captain Boone at Center. This lineup, the one which will probably start against the Presidents, include eight veterans and three new men.

Myler and Yound are both fighting hard for first-string berths at end. Cleland and Morrison are still in the running for guard posts. Oddi and Dishong, two reserve tackles, also look good. Ketterer, Brown, Harper, and Bloker, the second-string backs, all look good.

Shenango Bowlers Have Re-Organized

SEASON TO OPEN ON OCTOBER 6

The senior bowling league at the Shenango Tin Mill was re-organized yesterday for the eleventh annual year. It is a duckpin league. D. S. Pyle, superintendent of the Mill, has been re-elected as president along with the same set of officers who have held office since the league was organized back in 1919.

The meeting was held in the General office. The following officers all re-elected will serve the league—President, D. S. Pyle. First Vice-President, Raymond McBride. Second Vice-President, F. E. Weir. Secretary, E. S. Perry. Del Vecchio, Greensburg Country club pro, from winning the Professional Golfers' association championship of northwestern Pennsylvania at Cambridge Springs. He had an aggregate of 287 for the 72 holes.

Marcellas Headed For Football Title

South Side Team Goal Line Has Been Crossed Once In Three Years

Marcella football team appears to be headed for another grid title this year the way it has started out the season by topping Mahoningtown, 13-0 and Oakland 20-0.

This South Side eleven possesses a rather interesting record on the gridiron. Fred Marcella, notes South Sider selected a team several years ago and today that same team is in existence and in three years has won 14 contests, tied 2 and lost but one encounter. The team this season has captured two contests to date.

The backfield consists of ex-high schools stars and several other lads who have learned their football in the alleys. Richards, Marino, Scaglione, Fernati, Rossi, Augustine and Di-Thomas make up the backfield combination. The line is the same as that last year with Pascarella and Y. Marcella at ends, Scipio and Amos Augustine at tackles, Isabella and Genock at guards and P. Marcella at center.

Following is the standing of the seven independent elevens in New Castle so far this season:

	W	L	Pct.
Marcella	2	0	1.000
Croton A. C.	1	0	1.000
W. S. Olympics	0	1	.000
Oakland	0	1	.000
Mahoningtown	0	1	.000
Boro Club	0	0	.000
Colored Stars	0	0	.000

Negro Slayer Is Found Lynched

(International News Service)
CARTERSVILLE, Ga., Oct. 1.—Dangling from a limb of an oak tree, the body of John Will Clark, Negro, who confessed to the slaying of Police Chief Jenkins of Cartersville, was found by a squad of county officers today.

Several hours earlier the Negro was seized by a mob of fifty white men who overpowered three guards at the Barton county jail. The white men whisked the prisoner away. Officers followed, but did not locate the negro until dawn when his body was found hanging to a tree a mile below here.

Air Company Sets Night Flying Record

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—Nearly a million miles, more than half of it at night, was flown by Pacific Air Transport without injury to passengers or pilots during the past year on the Seattle-San Diego line, which recently observed its fourth birthday.

To date this company has flown three and one-third million miles and during the past year transported more than 10,000,000 letters.

During the past year one hour was cut from the northbound flying time, overnight service was established on the southbound schedule, radio telephone apparatus for plane-ground communication was installed and the airway lighting was completed.

Chilly Wind Sweeps Park

(International News Service)
PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—A chilly west wind that made top coats comfortable swept Shibe Park today as long lines of eager baseball fans assembled early seeking tickets for the opening game of the world series here this afternoon. Clear skies prevailed but the weather was more suitable for football than baseball at an early hour this morning.

The mercury dropped to 47 degrees at 7 a. m. however, the bright sun was expected to rise the temperature to 60 degrees by game time this afternoon.

Troopers May Play Mounted Basketball

Troopers Planning Game Of Basketball On Drill Field Next Week

Several of the troopers of Troop F 103rd cavalry are planning to stage a basketball game at the drill field, Scotland Lane, sometime next week. It will be a unique basketball game, to say the least, for all of the players will be mounted on horses.

There will be guards, centers and forwards, just as in an ordinary game. A regulation basketball will be used but the baskets will be barrels, placed at the ends of the drill field.

It is nothing new. It has often been played during the annual camping period at Mt. Gretna. Rules are practically the same as ordinary basketball except that there are no fouls.

Salvation Lassie Prefers Uniform

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Oct. 1.—Religious meetings are more appealing to Lulu Duerr, of Dormont, than the most glittering Paris evening gown, the latest movie, or the most dazzling social affair.

Miss Duerr, now 20 years old, has never attended a dance or show. She spends most of her time in the religious work of her organization which she began 12 years ago.

"I have had more enjoyment out of playing the cornet in the band than I would ever have in playing bridge. Uniforms are second nature to me—but I would be lost in a sleeveless evening gown, Miss Duerr believes.

Things and happenings that thrill feminine hearts hold no interest for Miss Duerr. She is content to wear her plain blue serge uniform and attend religious meetings.

And doubtless the coroner's jury would call throat-cutting an "unavoidable accident" if it happen often.

"The genius is very close to an idiot," says a critic. If you mean the genius who paints signs, he's close to a lot of them.

Aliquippa Will Prove Real Foe

Valley Visitors On Friday Night Are Coming With Idea Of Winning

TWO THOUSAND FANS TO ACCOMPANY

Coach Phil Bridenbaugh, for the second consecutive day on Tuesday afternoon sent his New Castle High school red and black gridders through a long as well as a strenuous workout in preparation for Aliquippa High which meets the local eleven on Friday night at Taggart Field.

The session Tuesday saw one member of the varsity combination sustain an injury. Fred Fabian fullback injured his left ankle in one of the plays and may be out for a few days. Whether the injury will keep Fabian out of the game Friday is not yet known.

The local gridders appear to be taking the Aliquippa game to heart judging from the way the boys are training. The boys are working out diligently. Aliquippa is going to prove the first real foe for the locals that will test their caliber.

Following a long signal drill the Coach ordered the boys to lineup for scrimmage. The regular first team minus the service of Jamison at left end opposed the second team. The scrimmage was a real affair with both teams fighting hard. After close to one hour of scrimmage Coach Bridenbaugh excused the boys until this afternoon when they will go through third workout this week in preparation for the Friday night tussle.

The Aliquippa gridders realizing the importance of this contest are training hard and are coming up from the valley with the idea of nothing else than a victory on Friday night.

Aliquippa High will be well represented judging from the number of tickets they have ordered. Faculty Manager sent the visitors 2,300 seats. It looks like fandom will be given a real football treat when New Castle and Aliquippa meet Friday night.

BENNY CICCONE HELPS CAPTAIN DUKE FRESHIES

began to be twindled, he changed his attitude. Everyone connected with athletics on the Bluff is greatly pleased with his showing. Everybody hopes that it keeps up. One main reason why Ciccone is "making good" at Duquesne university is that he has forgotten "of his high school days". When "Benny" Ciccone departed for the Laydenite football camp he ripped the page containing his high school record and started on a new leaf. He never tries to "show you" how it's done. Listens to the coach and never backtalks. These qualities have made him very popular with the coaches and also around the campus.

Incidentally, Glenn "Goat" Thomas, another New Castle boy making good, has been appointed, along with James Daly of Altoona, to coach the Duquesne university prep school football team. About 50 candidates answered the first call. All the material is green and light, but a fast eleven is expected to be developed by Thomas and Daly.

You're the JUDGE
 The Decision:
 The court held against Mrs. Simpkins.
 The judges reasoned thus:
 The well-established rule is that a continued absence of seven years leaves the conclusion of death. But except for the fact that it is well established, there is no sound reason why it should be seven years. Parties have the right to agree to whatever proof of death they desire to be furnished.

Think how much time could be saved by making your insurance policy payable direct to the automobile manufacturer.

According to the last census there are 320 farms in New York City which may explain watering the stock over there.

Aid Reporting Of Vital Statistics
 HARRISBURG, Oct. 1.—A recent investigation by the communicable disease bureau of the State Department of Health indicates that the cities and rural areas of Pennsylvania are each year showing an increase in their completeness of reporting contagious diseases.
 A survey, just completed, showed that approximately one case out of 12 of diphtheria terminated fatally, as did one out of 100 scarlet fever, one out of 220 measles and one of 60 whooping cough.
 A checking of the cities and counties of the Commonwealth using the above ratios as a measure gives Reading the best showing in its reporting, with Erie and Oil City following closely. The rural sections of Berks, Delaware and Montgomery counties apparently made the best showing in the rural districts.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Market Prices Today
Display RecoveriesBy W. S. COUSINS
International News Service Financial Editor

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Industrial stock prices swung upward in the early trading today under the impetus of short covering and bargain-hunting and good recoveries were made by a dozen or more of the leaders which had been mercilessly poured in the last few days. A relief that the market had been "over-sold" and that business improvement was not so far away induced better buying demand for the better grade of Industrial and Utility shares. The Rails in a few cases also participating in the rally.

J. I. Case, at the head of the high-priced specialties, jumped 9 points to 132. Houston Oil rallied about 6 points to 61. Westinghouse at 63; Air Reduction up 5 at 110½; U. S. Steel up nearly 2½ at 157½; General Motors up a point Radio Keith up 2½.

Both the Grain and the Cotton markets firmed up in the early trading but price changes were unusually narrow. Call money was in good supply at 2 per cent, and time funds at 2½ per cent.

Industrial stock prices recorded further improvement in dull trading in the second hour. Slowing down of the market was accepted as an indication that the steam of liquidation had been dammed up for the time being, at least. U. S. Steel sold above 158 in this period and Consolidated Gas above 163, up nearly 4 points from yesterday's low price.

American Can scored a 4-point jump to 121. The Radio and Amusement stocks gave a good account of themselves near the noon period.

Don Gillman, of San Francisco, vice-president of the National Broadcasting Company, predicts that the radio will soon be widely used in school work. Mr. Gillman was a pioneer in developing broadcast programs for use in California schools. Eventually, he believes nation school hours will be evolved on the broadcasting chains.

scattered and therefore would appear to indicate that the low water in individual springs and wells has had something to do with the situation. Communities which have had public water supplies, and therefore protection, are not reporting this disease except in one or two instances where several exceedingly small outbreaks have been traced to the milk supplies.

"The rural population should continue to exercise care in the use of drinking water from abandoned sources or from wells or springs, the purity of the water of which may be in doubt. In the event of the necessity of using problematical supplies, the water should be boiled before using," concluded Doctor Campbell.

The objection to Sherman's description of war is that it doesn't leave any adequate word to describe peace.
